Truman Considers National Emergency Edict

The "Last Desperate Mile" To Link Up With Rescue Forces

Trapped Marines And Infantry Given Support By Airplanes

BULLETIN

TOKYO, Sunday, Dec. 10—(AP)—Twenty thousand U. S. Marines and soldiers fighting in a bloody retreat from Changjin reservoir today joined forces with a relieving army task force striking inland from Korea's east coast.

The combined force still faced a hazardous 39-mile escape drive along a road lined most of the way with Chinese Communist troops to the port of Hungnam.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U. S. Tenth Corps, announced in a purposely delayed communique that the retreating First Division Marines and Seventh division soldiers linked up yesterday with the task force of the U. S. Third division.

U. S. EIGHT ARMY HEADQUARTERS, KOREA, SUNDAY, Dec. 10—(AP)—A high ranking Eight Army spokesman said today "the Eight Army has made no commitments of whether Seoul will be defended."

TOKYO, SUNDAY, Dec. 10—(AP)—Thousands of American Marines and Infantrymen trapped by Chinese Reds in northeast Korea struggled wearily toward a linkup with rescue forces Saturday night.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported from U. S Tenth Corps headquarters at 9 p. m. Saturday (7 a. m. EST) that elements of the Red-encircled force of 20,000 were battling down the "last desperate mile" separating them from a Third division infantry column driving to their aid.

A Tenth Corps spokesman said a linkup had not yet been made at that time.

U. S. Marine and Navy planes flew a record 391 sorties in support of the trapped troops, helping them smash back assaults by numerous Chinese battle groups of 400 to 500 men each and improving the escape chances.

But the Communist threatened to shorten those chances with a strong new encirclement.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, U. S. Tenth Corps commander, said Saturday afternoon that the trapped force of U. S. Marines and Seventh division infantrymen, plus some British Marine Commandos, was near a linkup with a rescue column.

Exact location of the breakout column, fighting down an ice-glazed, 45-mile stretch of road from Koto toward the escape port of Hungnam, was confused.

Over northwestern Korea, allied warplanes damaged one Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter and drove off several others in four dogfights Saturday near Sinuiju on the Yalu river boundary between Manchuria and Korea.

Attack Supply Convoys

American fighters and bombers continued their heavy attacks on Red troops and supply convoys moving south toward the Red capital of Pyongyang The U. S. Fifth Air Force reported its pilots killed or wounded more than 1,000 Chinese Reds near Pyongyang Friday.

On the western ground front, allied patrols tested the cutting edge of an 18-division Red force building up for an expected assault on U. S. Eighth Army defense positions 25 miles south of Pyongyang.

When this onslaught might come was not known on the allied side of the line, but tension increased in the south

Many Korean civilians fled from Seoul, 85 miles south of the Eighth Army front, for points farther south. Three American commercial planes were diverted from regular schedules to evacuate important American and other foreign civilians from Seoul.

The gravest threat to the allied position in Korea at the moment was in the northeast

Ten Arrests In Raids By State Patrol

Ten persons were taken into custody in three raids conducted Saturday afternoon by the State Highway Patrol at the Smoke House, 314 South Ohio avenue; B and H Cigar Store, 211 West Main street and the Pla-Mor, 207 West Main street. The raids were conducted simultaneously at 3:15 o'clock by Sergeant William Barton who went to the Pla-Mor, Trooper Dewey Millsap, of Lee Summit, Mo., who went to the Smoke House and Trooper Pete Stohr who went to the B and H Cigar Store.

Various items used in gaming, or gambling, were seized at all three places which were taken to the office of Sheriff John Taylor who locked them in the vault of his office.

Trooper Millsap took in custody five persons at the Smoke House, Joseph McEniry, 2011 West Broadway, Charles B. McEniry, 500 West Fourth street, owners of the place. Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes, 306 West Sixth street, Roy Eirl, 1205 East Fourteenth street, clerks, and Chester Anderson, rural route Smithton.

Trooper Stohr, arrested two persons at the B. and H. Cigar Store, taking into custody Kenneth Reams, 1018 East Fifth street; and Robert Lee Reams, 110½ West Second street, proprietor.

Sergeant Barton at the Pla-Mor arrested three persons, Charles W. Thompson, Jr., 409 West Fourth street, proprietor, his father Charles W. Thompson, Sr., 1804 South Carr avenue, and Harry H. Morrison, room four, Kahn Building, a clerk.

Confiscated at the Smoke House were tip boards, turkey boards, candy boards, two dice boxes and several sets of dice, and brass chips, weekly baseball board, and a large amount of used tip tickets.

Taken at the Pla-Mor were several sets of dice, six dice cups, a dice pad and bumper boards, tip boards of various types, two decks of cards.

From the B. and H. Cigar Store several tip boards, punch boards and one punch board with a watch on it.

Bonds Are Given

Nine of the persons were taken to the police station after being questioned at the sheriff's office by the state patrol members, where they furnished bonds of $2,000 each to appear in court at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday morning.

James E. Durley, assistant prosecuting attorney and also city attorney, said the charges at police court were technical, and that he desired to let Prosecuting Attorney William F. Brown, file the charges.

Prosecutinug Attorney Brown and Mrs. Brown returned late Saturday night from Chicago where Mr. Brown attended the Executive Board meeting of the C. B. I. since last Thursday night. He stated upon learning of the raids by the State Patrol that on the basis of the information he has been given so far he plans to file state charges on Monday.

Chester Anderson was released by Trooper Pete Stohr after being given a State Highway Patrol summons to appear in the Magistrate court, Wednesday morning. No bond was required of him.

Search warrants were not used in the raids.

A state trooper in civilian clothes is reported to have visited the various establishments following which other troopers, also in civilian clothes, made the raids.

Peace In Korea Is Remote

Truman-Atlee Conferences Get Some Points On List Clarified

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The windup of the five day Truman-Attlee conferences left today a continuing undercurrent of concern that the Korean crisis might erput at any time into an even graver threat to world peace.

There were few signs of offical optimism in the capital that the leaders of world Communism were prepared now to accept the formal British-American offer to seek a settlement of the Korean and other issues.

Defense Secretary Marshall dramatized this concern by his disclosure that President Truman is seriously considering proclaiming a national emergency.

Word from Lake Success that China has indicated a desire for "bringing the fighting to an end as early as possible," and that it is considering a 13-nation peace appeal, brought no comment from the State Department.

The information came from India's delegate to the United Nations. Officials here kept fingers crossed waiting for events to clarify whether the statement means any real change in the attitude of Communism's leaders. That it does not was indicated by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. He said the terms for ending the war are the same as those previously rejected by the U. N.—withdrawal of U. N. forces from Korea.

Courses of Action

Diplomatic authorities appeared agreed that the meetings of the president and prime minister Attlee left the initiative with Moscow and Peiping, where it was when the British leader arrived Monday.

However, American and British authorities generally shared Attlee's professed judgement that the meeting was fully "worthwhile" by bringing into line some of the differences between the two governments and laying down tentative courses of action in meeting the menace of Chinese aggression.

These courses boil down to a short range program to cope with the immediate Korean disaster, and a long range plan to deal with Communist aggression on a global scale. From the Truman-Attlee statement and what has been made by officials who took part in the talks, this was the picture:

1. In Korea, the agreement was to fight on, rejecting any idea of a voluntary withdrawal of General MacAruthur's forces, and meantime press for a negotiated settlement though the United Nations on the basis of a free and independent Korea.

2. For the longer pull, to speed western rearmament, share scarce raw materials in the same manner as during World War II, continue aid to the non-Communist ntaions of Asia, and meantime hold open the door for a possible settlement with Moscow which would at least slacken the pace of the arms race.

The plan to share materials is to be put into effect promptly with consultations with other nations, including Canada, France, Italy, and other members of the North Atlantic alliance.

Attlee, British authorities said, was fully satisfied with the cautiously worded promise in the communique that Britian will be at least notified in advance of any decision by the United States to employ the atomic bomb in Korea or any other possible future theater of conflict. Critical British reactions to Mr. Truman's Nov. 30 statement that the U. S. had been considering use of the weapon in Korea apparently was one of the main reasons why the Prime Minister asked for the hurriedly-arranged conference.

It Was Only 85 Above In Downtown Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9—(AP)—The mercury, aided by bright sunshine, hit 85 in downtown Los Angeles today, all time record for the date.

The previous Dec. 9 record was 83 in 1948.

As the thermometer went up, the humidity went down to a low of 14 per cent—making a fire hazard throughout dry southern California.

Elsewhere on the weather front, a slight earthquake jarred the Wilshire district but no damage was reported.

Is Injured in Elevator Drop

John M. 'Duke' Davis in Three Story Fall

John M. "Duke" Davis, 1014 South Ohio avenue, elevator operator at the Ilgenfritz building, Third street and Ohio avenue, was severely injured about 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon when his elevator fell from the third floor of the building into the basement. He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg just below the knee.

John T. Stanton, Hughesville, was the first to reach Mr. Davis, dashing from the third floor down the stairway into the basement. He opened the cage door on the elevator and found Mr. Davis. He talked with him while others summoned aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton and their son were standing at the elevator door on the third floor waiting its arrival. J. W. Palmer, 901 South Vermont, attorney, who has his office on the floor and R. R. Sellers, rural route Sedalia, whose office is also on that floor stepped off the elevator. Mr. Palmer turned to the Stanton's and asked them into his office.

Rushed to Extend Aid

They no more than turned around when the elevator began its dropping trip. The crash was heard throughout the building. Mr. Stanton then dashed to the basement to give whatever aid he could.

The fire trucks from the West Sedalia station were called and firemen went into the basement to see what they could do. In the meantime Dr. H. O. Wilber, who offices in the building, ran down and examined Mr. Davis. He then applied emergency splints to the broken leg and Mr. Davis was then taken in the Ewing ambulance to the Bothwell hospital.

Dr. E. L. Rhodes attended Mr. Davis at the hospital and set the fracture also had X-ray pictures taken to determine the extent of the injuries.

Firemen said apparently a bolt, or two bolts, holding two of the large cables had snapped letting the elevator cage drop. An emergency brake on the elevator also failed to hold, it was reported by Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis has been employed as elevator operator at the building for more than thirteen years.

Big Plans For 1951 Missouri State Fair

A New Grandstand Show And Carnival For The Exposition

The plans for Missouri's 1951 State Fair are shaping up with expectations of a bigger and better exposition. That's the information given out by William E. "Bill" Preston, secretary of the fair who recently attended the annual entertainment conventions at Chicago.

Attended Chicago Meetings

Secretary Preston in company with R. T. Thornburg, Commissioner of Agriculture, and W. E. Poindexter, superintendent of concessions, returned the middle of the week from Chicago where they attended the International Association of Faris, Midwest Fair Circuit, Showman's League of America and National Association of Parks, Playgrounds and Beaches meetings.

One of the largest carnivals in the nation, Cetlin and Wilson World of Parade Shows, has been signed to appear here for the week Sedalia will be its first stop ever made west of the Mississippi River.

A new stage show has been contracted to appear in front of the grandstand. The 1951 Edition of Cavalcade of Stars will be presented by the Barnes and Carruthers Theatrical Enterprises.

Same Racing Sponsorors

The Sweeney and White Auto Racing Inc., sponsors of the MIAA automobile racing program has been contracted to provide the speed entertainment again this year. This organization has provided the speed for the race track for the past two years and have brought to the Missouri State Fair some of the country's outstanding auto race drivers.

The old wooden bleachers located just north of the grandstand have been removed, the grounds have been graded preparatory to the erection of a new bleacher section. The new bleachers are of steel with wooden seats and will take care of 4,500 persons.

Redecoating and repairs have been completed in the Administration building with the permanent offices being located on the south side of the building on the main floor.

To Grand Circuit Meeting

Mr. Preston accompanied by Ed. Duensing, superintendent of speed, left Friday evening for Columbus, Ohio, where they are attending the United States Trotting Association and Grand Circuit Big 5 Association.

The Grand Circuit events of harness racing will be seen at the Missouri Fair again this year, the third season for it to be staged in Sedalia.

Secretary Marshall Points To Gravity of The World Crisis

Judge H. O. Berry Perfecting Civil Defense Setup Here

With war conditions such as they are, the importance of civil defense is being stressed in communities throughout the nation. Since his appointment as director of civil defense in Sedalia, Judge H. O. Berry, retired Army officer, has been at work perfecting the organizational setup for this community.

There are dozens of elements in the organization plan to make it effective. Every community and every person has a part to play in it, according to Judge Berry. Remoteness from places considered probable targets does not exempt any community from playing its part in the overall program.

This fact was recognized at the meeting here Wednesday of the Municipal League, attended by mayors, attorneys and councilmen from smaller towns in Central Missouri. It was brought out that these towns should now offer their services to Kansas City and St. Louis in the planning of evacuation service in cases of bombing attacks on the metropolitan areas. If such an incident does occur thousands upon thousands of city residents will be displaced and the natural resources will be their movement to rural areas.

Must Be Prepared

Sedalia and other towns must be prepared to take care of these people, perhaps their own if they also become casual targets.

For the first time in 136 years this country is vulnerable to an enemy who can attack without warning by air and with bombs. To cope with this there must be proper organization and civil defense training.

Perfection of this organization is underway but cannot be accomplished unless Judge Berry has unlimited support. Mayor Herb Studer is the chief executive of the defense organization; Judge Berry the director. Chester Wolfe has been named to take care of the legal phases; D. K. Scruton, the publicity; Roy Snyder, deputy director; the Howard Construction Company to provide evacuation and transportation service; James E. Norlin, assistant operating director. Other appointments will be announced from time to time to head up shelter protection, civil air raid warning, health and emergency service, plant protection, rescue service, block captains and a dozen or more other necessary committees.

Judge Berry asks the cooperation of the entire community in placing Sedalia in the forefront of Missouri cities organizing for civil defense, a program the delay of which can prove hazardous.

Texans Killed By A MoPac Train

HOUSTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Two prominent Houston men were killed instantly today when their late model automobile and a Missouri Pacific passenger train collided near Liverpool, 32 miles south of here.

They were Dr. R. C. Rutledge, Sr., optometrist, and Ernest Howard Folk, an attorney. Both were about 50.

They were on a hunting trip at the time of the accident.

Rutledge was the father of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr., 28, St. Louis baby specialist who last year received a 70-year prison sentence upon conviction in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for second degree murder. Young Rutledge had been charged in the December 14, 1948, slaying of Byron C. Hattman, 29, St. Louis aircraft instrument designer, in a Cedar Rapids hotel.

Young Rutledge was released in May under a $40,000 appeal bond.

A Big 'If' For New Big Four Meeting

The Big "If" Is Discussion Of All East-West Problems

PARIS, Dec. 9—(AP)—The United States, Britain and France agreed in principle today to accept Soviet Russia's invitation to a new big four meeting, but are putting a big "if" in their acceptance notes.

Russians Want To Talk

The Russians said Nov. 3 they wished to talk about the future of Germany. The Western allies promptly decided such a meeting would be useless unless all East-West problems were talked over. That is the big "if."

The conditions of Western acceptance were worked out at a "little big three" meeting here in the past three days. U. S. Ambassador David Bruce, British ambassador Sir Oliver Harvey and Alexandre Parodi, director-general of the French foreign office, headed the delegations.

Their recommendations were sent to their diplomatic chiefs in Paris, London and Washington. Reliable sources disclosed the recommendations reject the proposition the big four should meet to talk about Germany alone.

Agreement On Treaty

First, the Western powers believe, should be an agreement on the Austrian peace treaty. This has been hanging fire for three years. The Western powers accuse Russia of blocking it with petty objections. Only five minor points remain to be settled.

Then the West wants a discussion of Korea, Indochina, the Japanese peace treaty and other Asian matters before tackling the problem of divided Germany.

One diplomat here put it this way: "What's the use of talking about the German problem without first discussing the elements of international unrest which created the German problem?"

Several Of The Senators Desire Start on 'All-Out Mobilization'

By Edwin D. Haakinson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall pointed up the gravity of the world crisis today by saying President Truman "is seriously considering" the declaration of a national emergency.

The cabinet member told reporters this as he stepped from a three-hour closed conference with Senators considering President Truman's request for nearly $18,000,000,000 to strengthen the nation's fighting forces.

Several of the Senators, who had listened to grim reports from Secretary Marshall and the Army, Navy and Air Forces leaders, wanted to go beyond declaring a national emergency to at least a start on "all-out mobilization."

Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla), who has directed Senate action on most of the multi-billion dollar military money bills for 10 years, said he expects "an all-out mobilization, but the President as a first step should declare a national emergency," Thomas told reporters after the appropriations committee session.

"We don't have a 50-50 chance of winning a war with Russia now under our present programs," he continued.

"We must declare a national emergency to attain full defense production."

Possible Speed of Fighting

Senator McClellan (D-Ark) said he had urged the emergency declaration at the closed-door discussion because of the Korean war situation and possible threat that fighting will spread.

"The time for full moblization is at hand," McClellan said. "In view of any intelligent interpretation of world conditions, time is wasting. We ought to gear our economy to all-out production and do it now. I'd rather make a mistake in that direction than in the opposite direction."

Most Senators said the chief value of a presidential declaration of emergency now would be to put the American public on full notice.

On the technical or legal side, they said such a declaration would put into gear a long list of special powers for the President and government agencies that are triggered by such an order.

Such declarations were used by the late President Roosevelt prior to World War II.

Senators said the step beyond — general mobilization — would move the country onto a wartime footing for any eventuality.

Mean Faster Call-Ups

The term general mobilization was not defined. But if it were really "all-out" it would include such things as the drafting of many more men at a faster pace, the call-up of more national guardsmen, moves toward price and wage controls, sweeping steps to cut down the production of civilian goods and channel manpower and materials into defense production.

One Senator, who would not permit use of his name, said the possibility of a general mobilization had been discussed at today's session.

He said a big step-up in mobilization would come instantly if Russia should send her own submarines, air forces and manpower into the Korean fighting.

All Senators questioned said there was no doubt about speedy congressional approval of the $18,000,000,000 of new defense funds sought. They said Secretary Marshall and the top generals and admirals were asked if they could not use more money.

"We were told that is all they can spend efficiently in the immediate future," Senator McCarran (D-Nev) said.

Both McCarran and Senator Maybank (D-SC), chairman of the Banking Committee as well as a member of the purse-string group, urged that wage and price controus be applied at once where they are needed.

Need Woman To Tell Man What to Wear

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Every man needs a woman valet, says Hollywood's Nancy Olson.

Nancy is convinced that men not only do not know how to dress, but they do not know how to wear their clothes, either.

"Right now with the holidays coming up," she says, "it's time to call a halt to that studied carelessness in dress to which some men are addicted. Women like to dress up. They want to look pretty. How can you wear a lovely formal gown when the guy shows up in tweeds?"

Nancy, who says she has organized "the society for suppression of sloppy dress" just to make the boys clothes conscious, is hoping other girls will jump on the bandwagon. She explains:

"Once when I was dying to wear a new formal gown, my date showed up in a sports jacket with contrasting trousers. How in the world can you dress to that in the evening?"

"Now I've decided when a girl is asked for a date, she should find out first where the man plans to take her. Then she should inform him how she plans to dress for the occasion. If he doesn't care to be appropriately groomed, she shouldn't keep the appointment and suffer the embarrassment of looking like a drip."

At one Hollywood party which Nancy attended the boys showed up in formal attire and the girls were gay in lovely gowns. One well-known comedian arrived wearing a loud sports jacket, green pants and green hat. Everybody buzzed, she says, but nobody considered it a joke. Pretty soon, she says, "the jerk got the point and left the party."

Nancy recently played in "Mr. Music" with Bing Crosby. She says most people have the impression that Bing is not a good dresser. Just the contrary, says Nancy. He knows when to dress and when to be casual. He is fond of sports clothes, but usually confines them to their proper place. She thinks sports clothes belong on the campus, at home or in the country. The average town or city man should dress a little more stylish, she believes.

She thinks now that men wear soft shirts with tuxedoes they should be happy to wear a dinner jacket. It saves their regular suits, they look charming and besides "it is such a nice change" for the woman.

There are many combinations that a man can whip together and really look like a Beau Brummel, Nancy says. She suggests a plaid tie and cummerbund with a white winned jacket, maroon tie and studs with a tuxedo and perhaps a nice faile or morie tie with tails.

The trouble with men, she says, is that they have preconceived ideas of what looks good on them, but most of the time they are wron. In particular, she says, California men are the worst dressers. Even when they can afford to buy good clothes, "Two men can wear the same suit, and one look baggy in it."

He Spares Pelts Pelts, Turns On Nylon, Makes Fur Coats On Assembly Line Basis

FUR THAT GREW IN A FACTORY—from nylon—made these two coats. The "sheared nylon shortie" on the scale weights only three and a quarter pounds, compared to the eight-pound average of natur al fur coats.

By BERT GOLDRATH
NEA Staff Correpsondent

MILWUAKEE, Wis. — (AP) — There's good news in the animal kingdom. Sleek fur coats that grew in a factory instead of on a four-footed beast are coming off the assembly line here. They closely resemble the real thing, but they are made entirely of nylon.

Chief advantages, according to Sydney Krasno, 33-year-old manufacturer of the nylon furs, is that they have twice the warmth of fur with half the weight, they're sold minus the 20 per cent excise tax (at $140 for the three-quarter-length job), they can be surface washed with soap and water or dry cleaned by ordinary methods.

Nylon doesn't interest moths so the coats need no special storage, and there's nothing in the fabric to trouble persons allergic to furs. The material, says Krasno, as also windproof and water repellent. If the "hairs" become matted, they can be restored to shape by hand vacuum cleaning.

Nylon pile fabrics appeared on the clothing scene during World War II. In an experiment, Arctic fliers wearing nothing at all beneath their nylon coats stayed warm for several hours at 60 below zero.

What's good news in the animal kingdom and perhaps to the U. S. consumer may turn out to be bad news for Russia, which has been doing a multi-million dollar fur business with America.

A possible indication of the future of the nylon fur coat industry was a recent sale in a large Chicago department store. The enthusiastic buyer expected to sell as many as 12 coats the first week. He sold 61.

The coats are currently being produced in short and three-quarter lenghts, in navy, red grey and white. They are made in a box style with slit pockets, cuffed sleeves and hooked lap-overs. Everything is nylon but the hooks—the pile itself, the knitted base, mest interlining and double weight lining, which matches the coats or can be had in racy plaids.

So far the new fur-type coats are being manufactured to resemble only mouton. That's because Krasno's firm—Milfur, Inc.—was originally in the business of making mouton coats. They dropped the real moutons last winter and have switched over completely to nylon.

But Krasno declares that nylon pile can be made to resemble any real fur so closely that an expert can only tell the difference by the closest scrutiny. The nylon filaments can even be baked to hold the curl of Persian lamb.

While nylon probably won't make inroads in the mink and chinchilla set, its backers anticipate that the new product will have a big effect in the low and medium priced fur coat field.

Through Gantlet of Fire the UN Forces Retreat in Korea

By Don Huth
(For Hal Boyle)

WITH U.S. SECOND DIVISION, Korea —(AP)— The weird convoy beat a bloody trail through a flaming five-mile roadblock.

It won its fight, evacuating men of the American Second Division trapped in the Chinese Red breakthrough of the Chongchon river line in northwest Korea.

Two ambulances, three generals' field vans and four commandeered trucks were used to bring the men out. The division's headquarters company ran a gantlet of withering fire to reach safety during the United Nations retreat.

"To the best of my knowledge we didn't leave a wounded man behind," said Capt. W. O. Burla, 48, of Los Angeles.

The lanky, gray-haired captain directed the rescue. He said:

"It was wonderful to see how those men — the wounded and those who helped them—conducted themselves. It made a man proud to do what little he could to help."

The decision to evacuate the headquarters command post came about noon on Nov. 29.

Efforts to crack the roadblock had been unsuccessful. The command post had been under fire the previous night. There were at least 28 wounded already on hand to move.

"We lined up the ambulances, trucks and vans," Burla related.

"The two ambulances already were full. They were crowded with between 10 and 12 men each.

"We fell in behind the last group pulling out of the CP (command post). It wasn't very long before we ran into heavy fire. The column slowed down. Killed and wounded men were lying all along the road."

Burla said the medics "were really wonderful. Gunfire was going on all around us, they worked among the men doing as much as they could for them. They worked like Trojans."

Wounded in Trucks

The wounded were coming so fast the trucks filled up quickly. The side guard rails from disabled trucks were used to make a second tier so each vehicle could handle more men.

"We just kept loading the wounded as we moved slowly along," Burla said. "If a truck blocked the road and was abandoned, we just rammed it off to the side.

"The boys would work alongside the road to determine if the men lying there were alive or dead. Sometimes it was hard to tell. It didn't make any difference who it was—American, Turk or South Korean. We picked them all up. We weren't thinking of individuals. We were thinking of the whole operation.

"It was pitiful to see some of those boys. Their faces were white with shock. But when they opened their eyes you could see how grateful they were. It made you almost want to cry. But it gave them confidence and you could see the color come back to their faces.

"Why I even saw some boys who were wounded themselves helping other wounded boys get aboard the trucks. It seemed everybody that could was helping someone else."

It was a long and rough trip through the Chinese hail of fire which poured into the trucks as they moved south.

Some men who were wounded in action were wounded again after they had been loaded into the ambulance convoy. The generals' vans were splattered with blood.

Burla said:

"It was pretty tough to have to walk by those trucks and have one of the wounded stop you and say 'Captain, how much farther do we have to go?' You could hear some of the wounded moan but I didn't hear a single soldier who complained.

"They were real men."

Burla said two corporals from Fox company of the 38th regiment "were the heroes of that drive." He identified them as Robert R. Calvert and Harry B. Talcott. (Addresses unavailable.) He said:

"They were driving trucks and were cool as they could be. They never panicked or hurried. With bullets flying all around, they drove their trucks slowly while we made sure we hadn't missed anyone. They would stop and wait until the wounded were all loaded before they continued down the road."

Burla told of one man who was pinned down by fire in a ditch. While he was lying there he looked around and found a $5 bill in military scrip on the road.

Once through the roadblock the wounded men were taken to aid clearing stations and the more critical cases to hospitals in the Pyongyang area.

"There isn't a single man who deserves credit for helping those wounded," Burla said. "They all deserve credit—and a lot of it."

Cancel Furloughs For Christmas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 —(AP)— The Army today cancelled a general ten-day Christmas furlough for soldiers in training camps.

The announcement said training will continue through the holiday season at all camps in the United States except on Christmas day and New Year's day.

The Army explained that commanders at camps and posts may grant leave to men who can be spared in order to give them time to go home for the holidays.

The Army originally planned to suspend training for the two holiday week ends only, but on Nov. 11 announced that a general training holiday would be granted from Dec. 23 through Jan. 1.

Spokesmen explained here that the purpose of the shortened holiday period was to prevent any break in the intensive training program. They added that camp commanders might find it possible to give quite a few men more time off than just the two holidays.

Square Dance Contests be Held

Square dance contests, highly popular stage activity of the Liberty Theatre for the past two years, will be resumed each Tuesday night starting December 19. This series will establish the 1951 junior championship square, with all dancers twenty years of age and under eligible to compete.

Anna Lee Harvey will be the mistress of ceremonies for the stage contests and the services of the "Four Frolics," square dance and novelty band, have been engaged for the series. Gift bonds will be awarded the members of the winning square in each preliminary contest and a championship cup will be presented the 1951 junior champions, according to Reed and Son, jewelers, sponsors of the square dance contests.

Square dance groups qualifying for the junior series should contact Miss Harvey or inquire at the Liberty theatre for additional details.

Dr. Fleming at Christian Church

Dr. Jennie Fleming will be the guest speaker of the First Christian church this Sunday morning. The occasion will be the observance of "Women's Day" and the installation of Miss Eva Marie Johnson as the Living Link Missionary of this church. Miss Johnson is on the mission field in Africa and cannot be present for the service.

Dr. Fleming, herself a retired missionary, is coming as a proxy for Miss Johnson.

Dr. Jennie Fleming

Dr. Fleming began her missionary service in India in 1906 for the churches of Disciples of Christ. Except for furlough years she continued until her retirement in the summer of 1947 in that service, as a doctor and as an evangelist.

In 1915 she was assigned to the Mungeli Station to take charge of the women's work, and she continued with that task for over a quarter of a century.

The Mungeli territory is the largest of that supervised by the Disciples of Christ. Intensive work is being done among the Satnamis, the outcastes of that area. Missionaries and Indian Christian leaders spend much time camping near the villages and carrying on the teaching. Miss Fleming visited the Indian workers in the various centers, encouraging them and advising with them over problems which frequently arise, hunting out the scattered Christian homes, keeping them in touch with other Christians and the churches, and teaching groups of evangelists and Bible women.

Miss Fleming was graduated from William Woods College, and studied at Still College of Osteopathy, in the Indiana University School of Medicine, the College of Missions and the Bible College of the University of Missouri.

Muddle in Gifts Works Out Nicely

Several days ago a Sedalia woman bought a birthday gift for her sister-in-law at one of the local department stores — a lovely dainty slip. Then she went to a ten cent store where she picked out a pretty birthday card to go with the gift and took out her pen and wrote a nice little greeting adding to it "If this does not fit you can exchange it."

Wandering on through the store she stopped at another counter and purchased some men's work gloves, a bright yellow shade and a rather large size. Not wanting to have so many little packages she slipped the card in the sack with the gloves and just as she started home the sister-in-law and her little girl came by in their car and asked her if she wanted a ride home.

She did and she climbed in the car but when she climbed out one of her still too many packages had gotten away from her hold on them and remained in the seat.

When the sister-in-law and her little daughter arrived home they found the package. They wondered where it came from and looked in the sack to see what it was. Here was the lovely birthday card and the awful looking gloves.

"It must be for you, Mother," said the little girl, "It has your name on it — but why would Aunt Frances buy you such a gift?"

They went on into the house and read the note on the card: "If this doesn't fit you can exchange it" — and the gloves certainly did not fit.

"Well, at least," said the woman's mother, "It is a useful gift."

Perhaps it was a useful gift, the sister-in-law thought, but it wasn't exactly the type gift one would expect as a birthday present and finally she decided to call up the giver and see what she said and if it really was intended as a gift she would just thank her and act pleased.

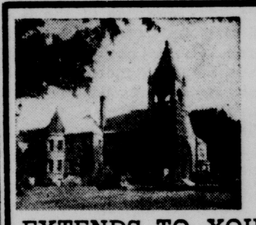

It was not until she had called that the other girl discovered she had lost her package and she laughingly explained to her sister-in-law that she did not intend the card to go with the gloves — she had a different sort of gift for her — and so she hastened to get the slip over to her with a happy birthday wish to go with the card.

Marshall Says Blood Collection Program Must Be Expanded

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, Secretary of Defense, has announced that the Cross must expand its blood collection and training program because of the possibility of "larger troubles" in the world.

"Of course," Gen. Marshall said "nobody can tell now what will happen, but the situation has become more serious. The possibilities are greater for larger troubles."

To 'Last Desperate Mile' To Link Up With Rescue Forces

evacuation through Hungnam spread along the hard-pressed allied line. Allied authorities neither confirmed nor denied this.

General Almond, however, confirmed abandonment of the port of Wonsan, to the south, saying two ports were no longer needed and Hungnam was the better. He said concentration in Hungnam would put his troops in better position "to kill off these birds."

UN Ships Off Hungnam

Ships of the United Nations fleet stood off Hungnam.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, commander of the fleet, told a news conference the fleet was "ready for any eventuality" but that it was there primarily to support and supply land forces in Hungnam and the industrial city of Hamhungn, a short distance inland.

Joy and other top commanders conferred in Hungham. No announcements were made after the meetings.

There was no word from other thousands of allied troops cut off by Reds far to the north.

These included the 17th regimental combat team of the U. S. Seventh division, which once was on the Manchurian-Korean border at Hyesanjin, and elements of the South Korean Third and Capital divisions, once within 40 miles of the Siberian-Korean border.

Their locations were not reported in official war summaries.

It appeared that news coverage of the war would become more closely confined to official reports, at least temporarily.

General MacArthur,'s headquarters suspended briefings for war correspondents, one of the basic sources of war news.

There was no change, however, in the no censorship regulations under which correspondents have operated from the start of the war.

The Chinese Reds broadcast a claim from Peiping that they had killed or captured 23,700 allied troops since they turned back General MacArthur's end-the-war offensive late last month.

Officers at MacArthur's headquarters declined comment on the broadcast Tass casualty account, saying that often the Reds are only "fishing" for information when they make such statements, trying to trick allied sources into refuting their figures with correct figures.

Term Just Same

By George Bria

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 9—(AP)—India's Sir Benegal Rau said today the Chinese Communist government has indicated a desire to end the fighting in Korea "as early as possible."

But Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky told the U. N.'s 60-nation political committee that the terms for ending the war are the same as those previously rejected by the U. N.—withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea. By foreign forces Vishinsky means the U. N. troops and not the Red Chinese "volunteers."

Last night Chinese Red delegate Gen. Wu Hsiu-Chuan telephoned Secretary General Trygve Lie and asked him to come to his waldorf-Astoria apartment. Lie arrived at 4 p. m. EST today and the two were closeted for an hour. No statement was issued immediately.

Observers attached unusual importance to the meeting because it was made on Wu's initiative. This is the first time he has done this and there was speculation that he wanted to hand Lie an official communication from the Peiping regime.

Reached by telephone at his Forest Hills home later, Lie refused to answer when asked if Wu had received his government's answer to U. N. peace overtures.

"I cannot tell you anything," he said.

The U. N. later issued a statement saying Lie and Wu discussed "general matters and practical questions." Officials said no further comment would be forthcoming and "the lid was on."

Drastic Laws Effective If Put In Force

Could Be Invoked At Any Time By The President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Authorities said today that the declaration of a national emergency is being considered to galvanize the country into a greater defense effort, and to clarify some government powers to deal with the grave situation.

But emergency or not, they noted that civilians and industry already are subject to a list of drastic new powers given President Truman to use any time; wage-price controls for instance.

An emergency declaration would get the people "down to work," in the opinion of a Senate leader, Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of the banking committee.

Urging such a step Thursday, Maybank said it would be useful in emphasizing the seriousness of the world situation, and the urgent need, as he sees it, for inflation controls.

Authorities gave their views of the meaning of what an emergency would entail after Secretary of Defense Marshall had disclosed that President Truman "is seriously considering announcement of a declaration of national emergency."

Some Still In Effect

Legal authorities, who declined to be quoted by name, said that a limited emergency proclaimed by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1939 and an unlimited one he declared in 1941 are still legally in effect. President Truman already has, therefore, some of the powers he could use under a new proclamation.

One official recalled that Congress in 1947 terminated a large number of laws which had been brought into operation by the emergency proclamations of 1939 and 1941. If any of these laws are to be used again, he said, they will have to be re-enacted. If Mr. Truman proclaims an emergency, he may ask Congress at the same time to reinstate some of them.

The same authority explained also that, in some legislation enacted since World War II, Congress provided emergency powers good only in a new emergency.

This informant said the Defense Department's powers to speed up purchases of munitions depend partly upon on such grant of power. The department now must advertise for bids on most of the things it buys, he added, but under a new emergency declaration it would have increased freedom to negotiate and place orders.

Lawyers agreed, however, that the declaration of an emergency would be more important in arousing the country to the gravity of its situation than in clearing up legal questions.

They pointed out that President Truman already has power to control prices and wages, to impose rationing, to allocate scarce industrial materials, and to compel factories to put defense work ahead of everything else. Congress gave him this authority in a broad home front mobilization bill passed Sept. 1.

Final Payments For Circus Fire Victims

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 9—(AP)—Checks covering the final $690,612.43 payment on claims growing out of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus fire here July 6, 1944 will be mailed before Christmas.

Signatures from the last of the 676 claimants were obtained today on satisfaction of judgment forms. One hundred and sixty-eight persons, many of them children, died when the main circus tent burst into flames during an afternoon performance. There were 487 injured.

The checks, representing a 17½ per cent dividend on the total claims amounting to $3,946,335.70, probably wil lbe mailed before the end of next week, said Attorney S. Rogin of Hartford, circus receiver.

Question Three In Bomb Killing

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 9—(AP)—Officers seeking the killer of gambler Nelson Harris, Mrs. Harris, and their unborn chilf, questioned three men today.

One was a Fort Worth ex-convict who denied he knew who did the killing. Dective Inspector Clay Bishop als questionec two men brought here from Texarkana last night. The first reports from his interview were that the pair hadn't been linked with the Harris bomb deaths.

A nitro bomb wired to the starter of the Harrises' car killed them here Nov. 22. Harris, 41, was one of 21 persons convicted 10 years ago as a member of the "Green Dragon" ring, a narcotics gang.

After the two men were picked up yesterday in Texarkana, Bishop described one as an Oklahoma "gang chief" and the other as an auto mechanic and expert nitro handler from Mississippi.

The Fort Worth ex-convict was released after talking with officers for an hour. Officers also were seeking another man for questioning as a sequel to an roundup and talks here last week with 11 gamblers and their associates.

This estimate of the situation was given today: Detectives are are convinced they know who ordered Harris killed. But they also believe the person who can put the finger on the killer is afraid to talk because a gangland threat of death has been made against anyone who talks.

Critic's Mother Describes Furore

CHICAGO, Dec. 9 — (AP) — An unfortunate occurrence."

That's how music critic Paul Hume's mother describes the furore over the letter President Truman wrote her son after he criticized Margaret Truman's singing.

"It seems to me," Mrs. Robert W. Hume said in an interview today, "that with the international crisis the United States is facing, the President should have more on his mind than stooping to write such a letter."

Mrs. Hume, of suburban LaGrange, said her son has a perfect sense of pitch "and he should know a flat note if he hears one."

Hume's review said Miss Truman's tone is "flat a good deal of the time."

"Paul meant no criticsm of Margaret personally," she went on.

"He has always said she is very gracious and attractive but is not prepared to give concerts as a finished soloist. I think Margaret was very nice about the whole incident."

Miss Truman had commented that Hume, of the Washington Post, is a "fine critic and has a perfect right to say what he thinks."

A widow, Mrs. Hume is the mother of three sons. She is employed in a suburban real estate office.

Three-State Search For Two Plane Victims

DENVER, Dec. 9—(AP)—A three-state search was organized late today for two Arkansas men missing since Thursday in a light plane somewhere over the snow-covered Rockies.

The Fifth Air Rescue Squadron at Lowry Air Base sent out planes to search the two hours before dark tonight. They had nothing to report. Squadron planes will go aloft tomorrow and be joined by civil air patrol planes from Colorado, Utah and Wyming.

Squadron headquarters said the two men are P. V. Bates and Dick Warren. They came here from Fayetteville, Ark., and left at 8:05 a.m., (MST), Thursday for Eli, Nev., to pick up Bate's parents and fly them home for the holidays.

They planned to refuel at Grand Junction, Colo., and Salt Lake City. Air force officials said a check showed they did not land at either city or at any airport in the general area.

The air rescue service asked highway patrols of the three states and any residents of the area between Denver and Salt Lake City to phone squadron headquarters at once if they had sighted the plane or any wreckage.

Billions In Big Contracts

Flow Is Steadily Proceeding To Industry Plants

By Max Hall

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The flow of military contracts to industry is proceeding steadily. Gigantic will soon be the word for it.

Though months will pass before the arms programs makes its major impact on the economy, the things that has already happened would be considered tremendous by peacetime standerds.

Before the Korean war, the armed forces were planning to spend slightly over 3 billion dollars for "major procurement and production" during the 12 months starting last July 1.

Instead, they obligated eight billion dollars for that purpose in only four months—from July 1 to November 1. The November figures are not yet available at the defense department.

More than half of the eight billion dollars was obligated for aircraft production. Although of course it will be a long time before those dollars are converted into actual planes.

Some of Big Contracts

Airplane contracts are kept secret for security reasons. But here are a few examples of large army contracts since the Korean war began:

Last Wednesday the army announced the award of a contract to the American Locomotive Co. of Schenectady, N. Y., for 500 medium tanks costing about $100,000,000.

The Cadillac division of General Motors is worikng on a $110,000,000 order for light tanks.

International Harvester, at Melrose Park, Illinios, has a $55,000,000 contract for armored vehicles

But it takes more than ordinance to build up a powerful army, navy, and air force and keep them going. Other types of contracts are for example:

To Dorset Food, Ltd., Long Island City, N. Y., for 2,879,904 cans of hamburgers (with gravey) valued at $1,068,844.

Every week the commerce department issues a list of military contract awards, omitting, of course, of secret ones. These lists are growing longer.

For a tax payer's eye-view of where the money is going, let's look at the most recent weekly list, dated Dec. 6.

This list reported 435 contract awards.

The two largest were identical awards to two Akron rubber companies, Goodyear and Firestone. Each firm got a contract for 63,975 brake shoe assemblies, valued at $12,546,112.

The smallest contract on the list went to Robert M. Green and Sons, Inc., Philadelphia, for eight baker's work tables, valued at $1,059.

Other examples from the list:

The Cincinnati Carpet Company got a contract for 6,000 caskets, valued at $1,339,080.

Eastman Kodak got a contract for 327 range finders, $2,400,000.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., will provide 1,903 dozen cans of saurkraut, $41,444.

CBI Committee Holds Session On Asia Relief

William F. Brown, Pettis county prosecuting attorney and national commander of the China-Burma-India Veteran's Association, returned to Sedalia Saturday from an emergency meeting of the C-B-I executive committee in Chicago.

The major business of the meeting was the implementation of the Burma Resolution passed in a similar meeting here last month.

The following resolution was passed by the committee and will be sent to the President and both houses of Congress

Whereas, there have been sweeping changes since our annual reunion in August 1950, and whereas we feel the American public is interested in the reaction of veterans of the C-B-I theater of operation in World War II to the present crisis in the Far East, now be it resolved by the executive committee of the C-B-I VA in emergency session assembled that:

(1) The convention resolution recommending American aid to Burma be implemented to unconditionally recommend immediate American aid to all southeast Asia in emergency efforts to stop the spread of Communism in Asia.

(2). To recommend immediate American military aid to an country in southeast Asia that is sincere in its efofrts to stop the on-rush of Communism in Asia.

(3) That this country use any and all means in combatting Communism in Asia and elsewhere and that we continue to use our armed services, and to furnish economic assistance in the Far East until all Asiatic countries have had opportunity to establish governments of their own choice without foreign interference.

Pope Pius XII To Broadcast Dec. 23

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 9—(AP)—Pope Pius XII will broadcast his usual Christmas message on Dec. 22 instead of on Christmas eve, it was announced today.

The reason is that on Christmas eve the Pontiff will be busy with the closing ceremonies of the 1950 Holy Year.

Some Hesitant As To Acheson

Deem Time As Inopportune To Press Criticism

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Some Senate Republicans backed away tonight from a proposed demand for the replacement of Secretary of State Acheson.

Senator Ives (R-NY), author of such resolution, told reporters that while he still believes Acheson should go "I certainly don't want to force any action that will occasion disunity."

Ives spoke up after Gov. Thoms E. Dewey of New York, the 1948 GOP presidential nominee, said that with the United States in a state of emergency, "this moment is not the time for further criticism" of administration handling of foreign affairs.

"I quite agree with Governor Dewey," Ives said. "I still believe that Secretary Acheson should be replaced. But I am seeking to promote at this perilous time—as is the case of every other loyal American — is unity. I certainly don't want to force any action that will occasion disunity."

The New York Senator indicated that a Senate Republican policy subcommittee he heads may draft his resolution next week to eliminate the demand for Acheson's ouster. Ives said the committee might decide, instead, to blend criticism of the administration's policies with a call for an affirmative program behind which the two major parties could unite.

Dewey's call for a cessation of criticism at this time found support among other Republican Senators who will be called upon at a party caucus Tuesday to pass on whatever recommendations Ives' committee makes.

President Truman has stuck squarely behind his Secretary of State. Democrats in a position to know have denied rumors that Acheson might be replaced in the immediate future.

There were signs, however, that Acheson is smarting under the Republicans' attack.

When he arrived for testimony before a Congressional group earlier in the day, Acheson was introduced to a group of Birmingham, Ala., high school students by Rep. Battle (D-Fla).

With a wry laugh, Acheson said: "I am delighted to see them and to expose them to the terror of looking at me."

Nationalist China Has The Largest Force in All Orient

By Spencer Moosa

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 9—(AP)—Nationalist China has the largest military force in all all the Orient to throw against communism—700,000 trained and battle-tried men under arms.

Informed quarters estimate Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has an army of 580,000 men, and an air force and navy of about 120,000,000 on this Nationalist stronghold, 100 miles off the southeast coast of China.

Yet to match the Chieese Communist armies waiting across the Formosa strait these forces would would need considerable new equipment. The greatest need is for planes and replacment parts The army seems pretty well equipped.

Military sources close to the Ministry of of National Defense say that army regulars on Formosa have all kinds of equipment including rifles, light and heavy machineguns, artillery, tanks and armored cars.

These weapons have the same fire-power as those which the U. S Army used in World War II.

One competent source said that if additional anti-tank weapons were supplied — "we believe the firepower of the Nationalist army would be above standard."

The Chinese air force does not have enough planes for its personnel. Because of the lack of parts and replacements, all squadrons are under strength.

Nationalist authorities believe that a large number of American-trained pilots with combat experience in World War II could be organized into additional squadrons if planes and parts were made available by the United States.

Willing To Fight

The military source insisted that all of Chiang's troops on Formosa "have strong faith in the anti-communist cause and are willing to fight for democracy."

The official attitude is that any action taken by the United Nations against Communist aggression in Korea will be firmly supported by the Chinese Nationalist army if called upon.

The Nationalists are acutely aware of their continued membership in the Security Council and of Formosa's strategic position in the chain of anti-communist islands off the mainland of Asia.

On the China mainland the Nationalists count on the support of large numbers of guerrillas. But these are woefully lacking in equipment.

Estimtes of the number of pro-nationalist guerrillas range from less than 1,000,000 upward to 1,600,000. The latter figure is considered a generous estimate.

It is no secret that these guerrillas are poorly equipped. Their arms are old and varied. They need ammunition. They need signal equipment. And most of all they need a unified command.

Most foreign quarters share the Nationalist conviction that these guerrillas would rally to the support of Chiang if his troops manage to land on the Chinese mainland.

They likewise believe that most of the Chinese people, weary undr th iron yok of the Comunists, would support the Generalissimo.

One veteran foreign analyst estimates that every nationalist soldier landing on the mainland could count almost at once on active support from two guerrillas.

It also is believed that the ranks of the guerrillas would be swollen by defections from the Communist armies, particularly by former Nationalist soldiers now in Red uniform.

K. C. Wu, American-educated governor of Formosa, believes, for example, that 70 per cent of the Red forces would defect if the Nationalists got the ball rolling on the mainland. But this, perhaps, is over-aptimistic.

While the Nationalist army is fairly well equipped, it still needs more automatic weapons, ammunition, trucks, heavier tanks, and signal equipment.

Need of Better Food

The soldier needs better food. The present diet for each soldier is about 1,000 caloris below what is considered the minimum.

The food situation is one which constantly worried the army's commander-in-chief, Gen. Sun Li-Jen, veteran of Burma who got his training at Virginia Military Institute.

Independent quarters rate the Nationalist air force as good for this part of the world. It has around 500 planes, of which 150 or so are transports.

About 5,000 of its personnel were trained in the United States during the war against Japan.

The air force, however, would be incapable of sustained operation without replacements and spare parts. It could do with latest type planes. Most of the fighters and bombers are of World War II vintage.

The pilots generally are rated good. Their morale is high and they have plenty of courage.

The pilots also are noted for their loyalty to Chiang. Even in the darkest days on the mainland, only inconsequential numbers of pilots deserted to the Communists.

The Nationalist navy has probably less than 100 ships in commission, not one larger than a destroyer. The navy is in even more urgent need of replacements and spare parts.

The training in the navy, as in the air force, is rigid and from all accounts morale is high. Many of the officers are British trained. A lesser number ore American trained.

The Nationalists also have a Marine force commonly reported to number 10,000 men. It is undergoing exceptionally hard training.

The Marines have not yet seen action.

Official quarters indicate the Nationalists will respond at once if their previously-rejected offer to send 33,000 soldiers to Korea is accepted. It is obvious, however, the troops would have to be newly supplied and equipped before they would be of any use.

Miss Quillan Charged With Deadly Assault

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9—(AP)—The district attorney's office announced it will issue a complaint Monday charging Actress Ronny Quillan with assault with a deadly weapon in the butcher knife attack on Negro crooner Billy Daniels.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Ernest S. Roll said he also probably will issue another complaint charging attempted extortion against the red-haired Mrs. Quillan, 29, and white.

The statement was made after Daniels, 34, his face in bandages, conferred with Roll. Daniels, a $5,000-a-week singer of sexy songs on the Hollywood nightclub circuit, was accompanied by his white wife, the former Martha Braun, 21, Lowell, Massachusetts heiress.

Police answered a call to Mrs. Quillan's Hollywood apartment early yesterday and found Daniels with a long slash on his face that required 35 stitches. Daniels told officers Mrs. Quillan called him to her apartment and asked him for $5,000 under threats of charging him with raping her. Daniels denied her accusation.

Mrs. Quillan, divorced wife of writer —oe Quillan, has been released in $2,000 bail on a writ returnable Monday.

Daniels' wife, who came here from Boston by plane married the singer last January over protests of her father, Carl Braun. She has expressed confidence in her husband's innocence.

Daniels and his wife held hands in the district attorney's office. Roll said Daniels denied ever being intimate with Mrs. Quillan. He said he had "gone out socially with her" before his marriage.

Public Speakers Hold Meetings

The Sedalia Public Speaking club met in regular session Friday night December 8 at the Public Library meeting room with Mr. Elmer Ells presiding. The club is being conducted with an air of complete informality and mutual friendliness which is making it possible for each member to actually learn and improve his techniques as a result of the practice and the criticism which he receives.

The meeting Friday was attended by R. L. Dawson, Sam Ross, Robert E. Sherman, Louis S. Payton, Clark H. Lypsha, Mrs. Fred Kyhlman, Ed Delaney, Norman Geiger, L. A. Pharris and Guy W. Peabody.

PLYMOUTH OWNERS ARE IN A CLASS BY THEMSELVES

They get the benefit of outstanding features found in no other lowest-priced car

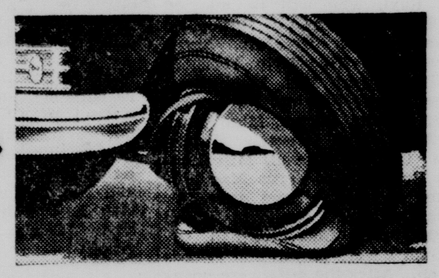

SAFETY-RIM WHEELS

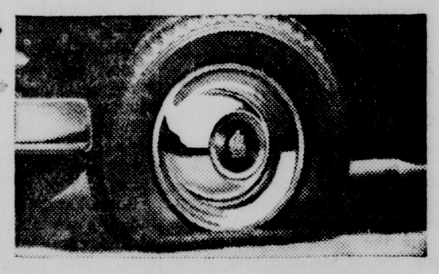

This patented feature gives Plymouth owners positive protection from the danger of blowouts.

When a tire on the conventional rim gives way, you get this. The deflated tire twists and whips, sets up a drag on the steering wheel – may throw your car completely out of control.

When a tire on the Plymouth Safety-Rim Wheel gives way, you get this. The deflated tire is locked firmly to the rim, enabling you to bring your car to a sure, safe, straight-line stop.

No other lowest-priced car, only Plymouth, gives you this vitally important protection

SAFE-GUARD HYDRAULIC BRAKES

When a Plymouth owner steps on the brake pedal with a certain pressure, he knows exactly what to expect. That's because Plymouth braking is consistent and precisely predictable.

Plymouth brakes have a total of six hydraulic brake cylinders (four in the front brakes and two in the rear brakes). This places most of the braking action on the front wheels where it's needed. Each of the other two leading lowest-priced cars has only four brake cylinders.

No other lowest-priced car, only Plymouth, gives you the sure, smooth stops of Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes

CHAIR-HEIGHT SEATS

When Plymouth owners go motoring, they sit in a natural position with a clearer, closer view of the road. That's because Plymouth is the only lowest-priced car with chair-height seats. You don't slump down on your spine with knees drawn high.

KEY STARTING—AUTOMATIC CHOKE

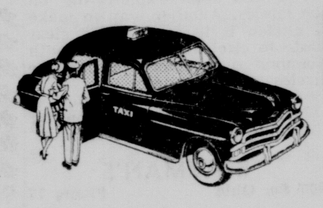

Just turn the key—that's all. The ignition is on—the engine is running—the automatic choke is operating—all at once! No starter button or choke to fumble with—no flooding or stalling of the engine.

ALSO, ONLY PLYMOUTH—in the lowest-priced field—GIVES YOU:

The brilliant performance of 97-horsepower engine with 7.0 to 1 compression ratio (highest among the three leading lowest-priced cars) . . . the smoothness of Floating Power, gently cradling the engine in live rubber . . . and many other features.

When service is required, Plymouth owners are in a class by themselves here, too. For Plymouth dealers offer the expert skill of some of the most highly-trained specialists in the industry. Thousands of these men are enrolled in Plymouth's Master Technicians Service Conference. Whether you are looking for a new car, a used car, or for superior service, your nearby Plymouth dealer is a good man to know.

Plymouths are famous for dependable transportation. Of all standard-built cars used as taxicabs—there are more Plymouths than all other makes combined!

Style Guide for today's woman
By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

Last week's Christmas parade and the snow this week has given most of us a real Christmas spirit. The dress departments are twinkling with glamourous new dresses. Beautiful prints with navy, gold, black and red backgrounds have arrived. Some of them are trimmed with velvet while others have self-covered buttons and belt.

These gay prints will give you a real lift right now, and just the thing to wear under your winter coat that may have become drab over your present dresses. Basic dresses in black, navy and grey are arriving too. A collection of scarves and necklaces will turn a dress of this type into several changes for you—

The hemlines are definitely shorter, so have your new dress length made accordingly. A few new spring suits are making their appearance now, and it is a good idea to look at them and begin thinking of what you will need. An early shopper, you know, is a wise shopper.

Make a dozen or more circles of white buckrum or crinolin (can be purchased in piece goods dept.) ranging in size from about 9 inches in diameter to 2 inches. Either cut them out with pinking shears or cut in points around the edge.

Put a 15-inch white taper candle in a low holder; then beginning with the largest circle; cut a hole in the center and slip over the candle and push to the base of the candle, using the largest circles first, work to the top with the smallest ones.

Now to decorate your white Christmas tree (are you surprised you have one?) get a package of star stickers in assorted sizes and colors and stick haphazardly on the circles. Another way to make it glisten is to apply some clear paste to circles and sprinkle with diamond dust before putting the circles on the candle.

Makes a festive decoration for the table used singly or in pairs.

Texas Aggies Double Score On Georgia

Bob Smith Leads Mates To Victroy In Charity Contest

By Arthur Edson

COLLEGE PARK, MD., Dec. 9—(AP)—Bob Smith, Texas A&M's great fullback, ran the opening kickoff back 100 dazzling yards for a touchdown today to start the Aggies on their way to a smashing 40-20 victory over Georgia in the first Presidential Cup football game.

Just to show it was no fluke, Smith followed this up with an 81 yard run for another score.

Tidwell Also Stars

Great as Smith was, he got grade A competition from Billy Tidwell, a scampering Aggie halfback who ran six, five and 36 yards on three touchdown jaunts.

The outburst added up to a 40-0 lead for the red hot Aggies before Georgia even got started. Late in the third period, when the Aggie reserves were in, Georgia finally found the range. Then Zippy Morocco, a 168-pound Confederate from Youngstown, Ohio, plunged over from the two for Georgia's first tally.

In the last period Morocco toted a punt back 65 yars to score, and Lauren Hargrove piled over from the one for the third Georgia touchdown.

Issue Decided Quickly

But Georgia was caught so far off guard at the start that the game was as good as over before the 12,245 fans had settled into their seats at the University of Maryland stadium.

Coach Wally Butts of Georgia pretty well summed up what happened to Georgia when he said:

"We gave them two quick ones, and we didn't have a chance."

If you're interested in personal statistics, take a look at what Smith did today:

He got 121 yards returning kicks, 22 yards by catching passes, 158 yards rushing on 20 carries, and passed for 5 yards, a grand total of 306 yards. That pass by Smith was only the second he had tried all season and the first he had completed.

Sponsors Well Pleased

Although the crowd was disappointing—but not disappointed—American Legion officials, who sponsored the game, said they were well pleased, and plan to continue the game as an annual attraction.

The profits, if any, will go to the Legion's District of Columbia rehabilitation program.

Pairings Announced For Sugar Bowl's Cage Tournament

Bradley's Braves will meet Syracuse's Orangemen in the first game of a doubleheader at 7:45 p.m. (CST) Friday, Dec. 29. Kentucky and St. Louis will clash in the second game. And Coach Adolph Rupp's Bluegrass five will be out to avenge a 42-40 defeat St. Louis handed them here in the Sugar Bowl two years ago.

Winners of games Friday night will meet at 9:45 p.m. (SCT) Saturday for the championship. Losers in Friday games will meet in a consolation game at 7:45 p. m. (CST) Saturday.

The Smith-Cotton Tigers fell from the pinacle of CMC basketball success with a resounding thud Friday night losing to the Kemper Yellowjackets 41-25, in Boonville.

Bill "Bones" Morgan led the Tigers with eight points, scoring one field goal and six charity tosses. Robbie Robbins, Kemper center, poured through eight buckets and one free toss to take scoring honors for the red-hot Cadets with 17. Kemper forward Elmore hit for 13 counters.

Sacred Heart Wins Thriller At Houstonia

The Sacred Heart Gremlins defeated the Houstonia high school basketball team 44-42 in a thrilling game played Friday night at Houstonia. The Sacred Heart B team lost a 35 to 16 decision, and the Girls Volleyball team of Sacred Heart dropped a 40 to 18 decision to the Houstonia girls.

The Gremlin affair was a hair-raiser from start to finish with no more than five points ever separating the two teams. With two minutes to play the Houstonia team forged into a one point lead after they had trailed the entire game, but Bill Hodges tied the score with a free throw. Houstonia counted from the field and with 30 second remaining Captain Menefee tied the score for Sacred Heart with a neat flip from the side court. Houstonia took the ball out of bounds but the alert Bill Hodges intercepted a pass and dribbled in for a set up. A foul followed and Sacred Heart took the ball out of bounds and froze out the remaining few seconds of the game.

Captain Menefee with 14 points was high scorer for the Sedalia five followed by Hodges and Fall with ten each.

In the B game Bob Welliver was high for Sacred Heart with five points and Ryan was high scorer in the volley ball game with eight points.

Tuesday evening on the Sacred Heart court, the College High team of Warrensburg will meet the Gremlins. A B game between the two schools will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

SEDALIA Moose Lodge 1494, plans a "Living Memorial" to one of the players on the Moose Club basketball team, Robert "Bob" Tipton, who was killed the past week while hunting. The plan is to be brought up for discussion by the club at its next meeting, Tuesday night.

"Bob" as he was better known to his many friends was a star in basketball and football. He was an athlete who graduated from Smith-Cotton high school in the spring of 1949 and has continued to follow basketball by playing with independent teams and the latest with the Moose club team. He was a likeable fellow and made many friends around the Moose Club, especially on the cage team.

The Memorial will be in the form of an educational fund. This fund is to be built from a benefit or benefit games to be played by the Moose team with some other strong team. Monies from this or these games will be placed in this fund.

Its purpose will be to give assistance to worthy boys desiring to continue their education, but who are short on funds. Monies will be loaned to these youths so they can continue on their educational road.

HEISEMAN Trophy winner Vic Janowicz, Ohio back, was one of the three picks of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital sporting staff on their ballot for the winner. Kyle Rote, Southern Methodist back, who placed second was likewise a candidate from this paper. Our third choice, Jim Weatherall, Oklahoma lineman, didn't place. But that isn't bad for us country boys.

We gave it a study during the season because this paper was invited to vote again on the trophy winner. Three choices are given, first second and third. We picked the first two but missed the third. The third pick wasn't necessarily a miss as we felt a lineman had no chance in winning the trophy, and that's customary, the backs receive the limelight, hence usually come out on top.

However we feel rather good over the three selections as all were All-Americans on the following teams, Grantland Rice, Colliers, NEA, and Central News Service. The only miss was Rote who placed on the Associated Press Second Offensive team, while both Janowicz and Weatherall made the first selection.

I feel you cant' go wrong when you pick'em and they show on Grantland Rices' team. His teams are tops of all of them according to the majority of the sports writers.

Arizona State Leads Nation In Total Offense, Rushing

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Arizona State at Tempe and Princeton finished one-two in both total offense and rushing average yardage in the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau's final tabulations for the 1950 major college football season.

Princeton's unbeaten Ivy League champions wound up first in scoring points with an average per game of 38.8, compared to Tempe's 38.3 and third-place Wyoming's 38.1.

White Paced Tempe

Tempe's Sun Devils, spearheaded by Wilford (Whizzer) White, in winning nine of 10 games had a passing and running average of 470.4 yards per game. This is second only to Nevada's 1948 average of 487.0. Tempe replaced the 1945 Army squad, which featured Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis, in second place on the all-time major college list. That army team had a 463.7 figure.

Arizona State, first southwestern team to capture the national total offense crown, overtook Princeton for both that and the rushing title in its last game. It shot ahead by gathering 572 yards, of which 368 were rolled up on the ground, against Idaho. This while Princeton was being held to 152 yards by Dartmouth and a terrific storm.

The Ivy Leaguers were second in total offense with 453.7 yards per game, followed by Tulsa with 431.5.

Nebraska Third in Rushing

Tempe's average of 347.0 on the ground was easily tops in that department. Princeton averaged 325.4, followed by Nebraska with 321.6. Then came Kansas, 311.6; Tulsa, 307.6; Washington and Lee, 299.5; College of the Pacific, 298.0; Clemson, 294.2; Oklahoma, 293.1, and Army, at the bottom of the first ten with 285.3.

Princeton's average of 6.33 yards gained per play was high for the major elevens. Clemson, with 6:15; Kansas, 6:15 and Tulsa, 6.06, were the only other major teams averaging six yards or better per play.

Sooners Repeat

Oklahoma's National Champion Sooners became the only team to wind up in the top 10 this year and last in both total offense and scoring. The Sooners were seventh in yardage per game with 415.4 and a sixth in average points scored with 34.5—345 in 10 games.

In taking point honors, Princeton scored 349 in nine games. Tempe had 383 in 10, and Wyoming 343 in nine.

Tulsa, playing an 11-game schedule, established a record for total yardage gained in one season —4,747—topping Georgia's old mark of 4,725 in 11 games set in 1942.

College of Pacific's quarterbacks, by running off exactly 800 offense plays, set another season's mark. Nevada made the old record of 784 last year.

The top 10 in total offense:

National Emergency Quiets Major League Trade Winds

By Jack Hand

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 9—(AP)—Threat of a national emergency added a new note of caution to baseball today as big leaguers sparred for openings in trade talk.

With the manpower situation, an all-important factor, most clubs were reluctant to take a chance. They knew they might lose the men they had at any minute if a full scale war breaks out.

Branch Rickey, Pittsburgh general manager, caught baseball's mood exactly when he said "standpatism" was the byword.

Korea Holds Spotlight

Trade talk did sputter from lobby and hotel room conferences but nothing big appeared in the making. Of much more importance was the war news from Korea and the report from Washington that President Truman was considering declaring a state of emergency.

Cleveland's Hank Greenberg huddled with manager Jimmy Dykes and General Manager Art Ehlers of the Philadelphia A's. They talked about a catcher-for-catcher swap, Mike Guerra of the A's for the Tribe's Ray Murray. Nothing definite was announced.

Frank Lane, the busy Chicago White Sox general manager, was eager to deal but couldn't make connections. He and his new manager, Paul Richards, met with the Boston brass, Manager Steve O'Neill and General Manager Joe Cronin. The Red Sox want a pitcher, Ray Scarborough or Bill Wight, and Lane needs outfield help. Some of the names tossed around were Clyde Vollmer and Tom Wright of Boston.

Detroit-Chicago Trade Brews

A Detroit-Chicago trade might be in the making involving the Sox' first baseman, Eddie Robinson. The Tigers won't part with one of their front line regulars but may interest Lane in Pat Mullin and possibly infielder Neil Berry.

The Yankees have an eye on Wight, once their farm hand, and Scarborough. It hasn't reached the warm stage because the White Sox need outfield help. Perhaps Cliff Mapes and pitcher Fred Sanford might be tossed into the hopper by New York before the meetings are over.

Marty Marion, new St. Louis manager, was contacting all other skippers in preliminary negotiations. The Cards want infield help with Marion not expected to open the season. Marty will undergo an operation soon and will see only part time playing duty.

No Dodger Network in '51

Brooklyn took the lead in helping the minors solve their radio problem by announcing from Miami that they would broadcast only in their home "territory." E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, Dodger vice-president, said the Dodgers would not set up their own network to carry all over the nation as was done in 1950.

George Trautman, president of the National Association of minor leagues, will ask all the majors to restrict their open network broadcasts and television when he appears at Wednesday's joint session. It is understood that many other clubs will go along with the idea.

The American and National Leagues will meet separately Monday and Tuesday. It is almost a sure thing that they will toss out the bonus rule and high school agreement at their joint meeting.

Commissioner A. B. Chandler seems due to get a new seven-year contract. The pay probably will be $75,000, an increase of $10,000.

Ford Frick, National League president, will formally be voted a new five-year term at a reported $55,000 per.

Zwilling To Manage Yank's Quincy Farm

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 9—(AP)—E. H. (Dutch) Zwilling of the New York Yankees staff, was named manager of the Yanks' farm at Quincy, Ill., in the Three-I league today.

Zwilling managed Kansas City in 1937. He replaced Jimmy Adlam who moved to Fond Du Lac of the Wisconsin State League. Zwilling served as field supervisor in the western area in charge of tryout camps for the Yanks.

Noor Wins Gold Cup

$100,000 Race Goes To Fine Irish Horse In Brilliant Finish

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Dec. 9—(AP)—Noor raced to a tremendous victory in the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup today and convinced his arch rival, Hill Prince, and more than 50,000 roaring fans that he is the finest handicap horse in the nation this year.

The dark five-year-old son from Ireland, the familiar red and white silks of a great western racing family flying brightly in the late afternoon sun, thundered under the wire to win this richest race of the year by a full length in new track record time.

For a Mile and One-Quarter

Isador Bieber's Palestinian scored a surprising second and Hill Prince, the proud three-year-old champion from Virginia, rolled in a disappointing third.

Time—1.59 4/5

The Noor triumph, matching in brilliance the four conquests he ran over the superb Citation earlier this year, was clocked at 1.59 4/5, a fifth of a second off the track record set by Cover Up in 1947 in this Gold Cup classic.

Noor, racing for Mrs. Charles S. Howard, was the public choice from the first moment the lights began to blink on the parimutuel board, and paid $3.40, $2.90 and $2.20. Palestinian returned $14 and $4.90, and Hill Prince, the second in public fancy, $2.60.

Hill Prince Loses Stature

The victory of Noor in this 11th running of the Gold Cup at a mile and a quarter further enhanced his acclaim as the top handicap horse of the year and did much to rub off some of the glitter for Christopher T. Chenery's Hill Prince, who had been named not only the outstanding three year old of 1950 but the "Horse of the Year" by the August Thoroughbred Racing Associations.

If nothing else, Noor's scorching first place for the $100,000 net prize afforded adequate revenge for the Howard faction for the Irish champion's humiliating four-length defeat by Hill Prince in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont early in October.

LSU No Match For Longhorns

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 9 — (AP) — Southwest Conference champion Texas smashed Louisiana State University with a three-touchdown flurry in the second quarter today, 21-6.

Fullback Byron Townsend came within inches of claiming clear title to Southwest Conference scoring honors for the season. He smashed through LSU's line twice from the 1-yard line for Texas' first two taliles, running his 10-game total to 84 points, same as Texas A. and M.'s Bob Smith. He missed a third tally by inches.

Quarterback Ben Tompkins turned in Texas' longest scoring run from scrimmage this year—38 yards—and kicked three extra points to round out the Longhorns 21 points.

Fesler Resigns At Ohio State

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9—(AP)—The Columbus Dispatch said today Ohio State football coach Wesley E. Fesler resigned today while attending the Big Ten meeting at Chicago.

The Dispatch said the announcement came from Ohio State President Howard L. Bevis, who also attending the meeting.

The reported resignation came less than a year after Fesler threatened to resign on the eve of the 1950 Rose Bowl game at Pasadena which Ohio State won.

The Dispatch said it understood Fesler would join the organization of John W. Galbreath, millionaire realtor and sportsman and President of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club.

Giving his reason for quitting as "poor health," Fesler presented his resignation to Athletic Director Dick Larkins. Larkins, in turn, handed it to Ohio State President, Dr. Howard L. Bavis. It was accepted.

Fesler told a friend that "I was in the training room during the football season more often than the players—getting treatment for my head and neck."

Hubbard Loses To R. T. Coles

The R. T. Coles high school basketball team of Kansas City trounced the Hubbard high five Friday night 63-35 on the Hubbard hardwoods.

The K. C. quintet, averaging about six-two a man, outclassed the fighting Tigers on the backboards and proved to be much more experienced. Trailing the major part of the opening period the Kansas Citians over-hauled the Bengals with two minutes to play and were never headed.

For the Coles, King and Kennedy with 11 and 12 points respectively led the team while big Carl Whitney registered 17 for the locals.

Lovellette Leads Kansas To Easy 60-41 Victory

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9—(AP)—A six foot-nine inch Clyde Lovellette put on a sensational scoring exhibition as Kansas University rolled to its third straight sensational win with a 60 to 41 decision over St. Joseph's of Philadelphit in the first game of tonight's Convention Hall college doubleheader. Lovellette collected 32 points on 14 field goals and 4 fouls. Kansas led at half time, 31-24.

Aggies Lose Money Despite Victory University Of K. C.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Dec. 9—(AP)—The Texas Aggies won the Presidential Cup today by walloping Georgia 40-20, but lost money in the process.

The thief entered the Aggie's dressing room sometime during the football game and walked off with all the player's wallets and wrist watches. Police are investigating the robbery.

Proximity Top Standardbred Purse-Winner

Mare Wins $87,175 In 1950; Increases Account to $247,379

Fourteen standardbred horses—seven trotters and seven pacers—who were active on harness racing's Grand Circuit this year, have edged their way onto the list of top money-winning sulky pullers of all time.

Ralph and Gordon Verhurst's great trotting mare Proximity, who broke four world records at Grand Circuit member tracks in 1950 heads the list of money-earners, regardless of gait with $247,379 to her credit. The eight-year-old brown daughter of Protector who started her racing career in 1944 has won $87,175 this year alone, which makes her also the top money-winner of the current season. Proximity is the biggest money-winning harness horse in history.

Good Time Tops Pacers

Good Time, the tiny pacer owned by W. H. Cane of Goshen, N. N. tops the pacers for all time. He has earned some $157,908 in the career which he started in 1948. Of the total amount $52,705 has gone into the books this year for the Hal Dale colt who until 1950 raced all his engagements over Grand Circuit tracks.

Chris Spencer, the Dunbar Bostwick bay gelding from Shelburne, Vt., with $167,765 to his credit is second to Proximity among the active trotters. Dr. Stanton, owned by Lindy Fraser of Ontario, Canada, is second to Good Time on the active pacing list. He has won $127,625 since 1946.

Scottish Pence, the fleet pacer owned by the Castleton Farm of Lexington, Ky., maintains the fattest pacing pocketbook of 1950 with $71,487, although his lifetime earnings of only $82,329 keep him down on the full list.

Lusty Song Top Colt

Lusty Song, the 1950 Hambletonian winner, is the biggest money-winning colt of all time. In two full years of competition, as a two and three-year-old, he earned the amazing total of $124,941, placing him fifth on the all time trotting list. He has been retired to stud at Walnut Hall Stud in Lexington, Ky.

Following is the list of the 14 horses still active in sports who are on the money-winning list and their position on the all-time money earning records:

Trotters Name	Money Won	All Time

THESE FIVE STANDARD OILERS from Peoria, Illinois, have a total of more than 205 years of service with us. Three of them are now retired and receiving monthly retirement payments. Left to right are Chris Ludwig (retired), W. H. Flanagan, T. V. Warren, Charles Eberle (retired), and Tom Johnson (retired).

WHY 8,700 OF OUR EMPLOYEES HAVE BEEN WITH US OVER 20 YEARS

NELLE SAGE WORKS in our Indianapolis, Indiana, office. She is shown here receiving her pin from Mr. J. E. Millen in recognition of thirty years of service with the company. We are proud of her and the more than 8,700 other employees (out of a total of 46,700 in Standard Oil and its subsidiary companies), who have been with us twenty years or more.

WHEN JIMMY SHALLENBERGER was born, a large share of the bill was paid by Standard Oil contributory group hospital and surgical operation insurance held by his father, M. J. Shallenberger, who works for us in Joliet, Illinois. Our employees and their families are protected by one of the finest employee benefit programs in any industry.

TOM JONES of Detroit, Michigan, retired after more than 50 years service. He is receiving a monthly income for life under our employee retirement plan, to which employees and the company both contribute. Like all features of the benefit program which are contributory, the retirement plan is entirely voluntary; 94% of our eligible employees belong.

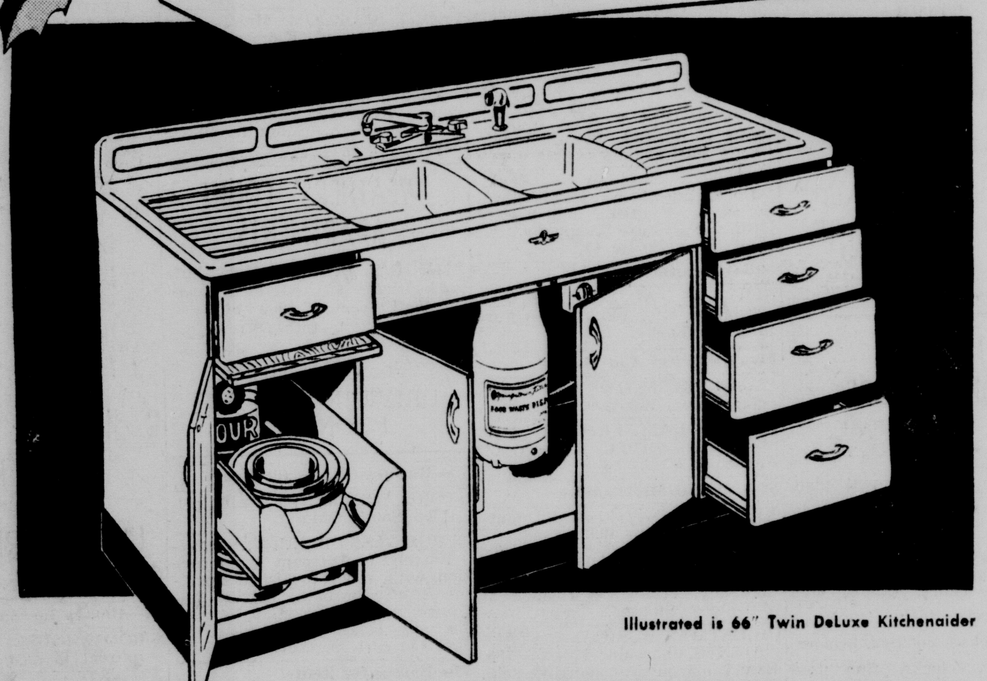

SARAH BARKER was absent from our St. Louis, Missouri, office for six weeks as a result of an off-the-job accident. A large part of her hospital expenses was paid by Standard Oil's contributory hospital and surgical operation insurance. She also received substantial salary payments under our sickness and disability benefits plan, which covers employees when sick or when injured on or off the job.

THERE IS SAFETY on the job. We have won many industry safety awards and our accident rates are so low that our employees are actually safer at work than they are in their own homes. John Savage and Russell Holm point with pride to the safety record of their department at our Whiting, Indiana, refinery—a record typical of Standard Oil, where employee safety is always a first consideration.

MACK CLARK is a tank car loader at our Whiting refinery. Like each of Standard Oil's 46,700 employees, he is backed by an average investment of $30,100 in tools and equipment. Good workers plus good tools mean high productivity, which is the foundation of a high standard of living. Our employees averaged more than $4,600 in wages and benefits last year.

Hubbard High Honor Group

Presented Friday At School by Principal Hylick

The members of the National Honor Society, students eligible for the National Honor Society, and students making the principal's honor roll, were presented Friday morning to the audience by the principal, J. B. Hylick.

The principal gave to these people his congratulations and requested that they continue to give every bit that is in them to continue on the Honor Roll. He stated to the members of the honored group that he was sure they know that honor begets honor and that those who strive for honor in the right way usually attain glorious honors. In talking to the pupils Mr. Hylick stated that he was utterly disappointed over the fact that more of the students were not honor students. The question was asked why is it that the majority of the students fall in the average category of just getting by. Is it because some psychologist say the majority is (usually the average) or do we just take it for granted that the majority will fall in the psychological bell curve.

Before the honored students were presented the 6th grade, under the direction of Miss Ruth McKenzie, presented a very beautiful short play "The Land of No Read." Each child showed evidence of having been taught by performing so beautifully when called upon. The band, under the direction of Charles Moten, played two numbers, 'O Come All Ye Faithful" in which the students sang along with the band. The other was "The First Noel." There were several parents present at the program to which Mr. Hylick, principal, welcomed and stated that he was always happy to see parents interested in their children from the standpoint of actually doing. He asked the parents to make themselves a committee of one to see that other parents might send their children to school regularly and become more interested in them as far as the liberary side is concerned. Mr. Hylick said that he thought the easiest thing in the world for a person to do was to be ignorant. In his closing remarks he said to those parents and students that the price of success with your children is vigilance. Are you willing to pay it to have your children become successful men and women in such a complicated, disturbed, uncertain, and most exciting world?

The honor students are as follows:

National Honor Society Members:

Students eligible for the National Honor Society:

Students on the Principal's Honor Roll:

Coletta Byrd, Nancy Maddox, Herman President, Harry Reed, Shirley Henderson, Marian Moore, Marian Black, RoseMary Rhodes, Alice Irving, Marquita Wharry, Minnie Campbell, Mary Thompson.

Claim No Wool Reserves Held

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Investigating Senators said today the United States nas no wool reserves for the military emergency and they blamed it squarely on the Munitions Board in a blistering report.

"Today, the United States—faced with the prospect of a long winter campaign in Korea and the maintenance of a 3,000,000-man armed force—has no wool in a stockpile, no wool in inventory, and less than enough wool in prospect through our domestic production," the report said.

The munitions board, defending itself, said it lacked funds to acquire wool, and Congress and failed to pass necessary legislation.

Issued by a Senate armed services preparedness subcommittee, the document said that rapid mobilization, if ordered, "might well result in inadequately clad troops."

Slamming again and again at the munitions board, whose job is stockpiling strategic materials to prepare the nation for war, the subcommittee said:

"While the munitions board was obviously doing plenty of "wool gathering' none of it was for a stockpile.

"Its shortsightedness will cost the taxpayers a minimum of many millions of dollars." It noted that purchases abroad to supplement domestic supply will be much more costly than in 1947, 1948, and 1949 when, the senators said, the United States had a substantial stock of wool on hand.

Lots at Tipton Are Sold at Auction

Sometime back, Mayor J. J. Brant and Councilmen E. G. Crawford, D. C. Bixler, E. A. Norman and Ed Hainen, of Tipton, bought the land there that has been known as the Mothers Club park from the Missouri Pacific Railroad company.

The purchase price of this property was $2,500. After retaining on the east end of the land a tract having a frontage of 120 feet running back 80 feet, the city held an auction last Wednesday afternoon of the remaining land which was divided off into five building lots, each being 22x80 feet.

These five lots brought into the city's general fund the sum of $7,250.

The lots were numbered from one to five running from west to east. The first three were purchased by Frank J. Gerbes for $4,800. A. C. Yontz was the high bidder for lot No. 4 at $1,300. and E. Athana, of Barnett, paid $1,150 for lot No. 5.

Otto Orscheln was the auctioner, and J. A. Conn, clerk of the sale.

On the city's property a new city hall is to be erected. Architects are now drawing up specifications for it.

Accused in Theft Of a Taxicab

A Yellow Cab, stolen from an alley next to the taxicab office at 306 South Lamine avenue about 9:00 o'clock Friday night was recovered and the occupant taken into custody within five and a half hours. The cab was recovered in Kansas City and the occupant identified as William Homer Clark, who said he resided in Kansas City at Tenth street and Oak avenue was taken into custody by the Kansas City police. Clark, it was also reported, lives in Sedalia, giving his address as 822 West Twentieth street.

The cab was taken while the driver assigned to the machine, Lee Paxton, was soliciting passengers at the Missouri Pacific bus depot. When he returned for his cab it was missing.

In the meantime the "new" driver of the vehicle collided with a car driven by George Ricks, shoe salesman at the alley between Third and Fourth streets on Osage avenue. The driver drove off without giving a report and was last seen headed south on Osage avenue. Before police arrived he had made good his escape.

A report of the cab being stolen was made to the police who in turn notified the state highway patrol by radio. The patrol then notified the Kansas City police department.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Feaster and Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors went to Kansas City to return Clark to Sedalia Saturday evening. Roscoe Thomas, manager of the taxicab office, accompanied the officers and returned the cab to Sedalia.

Charges of larceny of a motor vehicle were filed by assistant prosecuting attorney James Durley in the magistrate court of Harold Barrick.

Crisis Looms For World Peace Next Sprng If Moscow Splits the Atlantic Pact

THEY WANT UNITY: In Strasbourg, French and German youth delegations demonstrate for a united Europe, which the French insist is "the only way of rearming Germany without danger." But army issue still keeps European Assembly from uni ty."

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

STRASBOURG —(NEA)— With the European Assembly hopelessly deadlocked over the issue of a "European Army," Soviet Russia is exerting every effort to split the North Atlantic Alliance.

Should Moscow succeed in its design, a noted French military authority and Russian expert told me, next spring may well be crucial for world peace.

For the present there is little prospect of agreement among the states compromising the European Assembly. The British Labor government is reluctant to give up some of its national sovereignty which the formation of a European Army and an inter-European Parliament would involve.

But the French insist that "a united Europe is the only way of rearming Germany without danger." They want a European Assembly with power to decide on inter-European issues.

Meanwhile, fear that Stalin aims to embroil Communist China in a full-scale war with the United States puts pressure on the British and French governments to come to terms with Russia — with or without the United States.

The consensus here is that by forcing China into fighting with the U. S. Moscow seeks to:

1. Divert vast U. S. armed resources to the Far East.

2. Weaken Mao Tse-Tung's regime and thus increase his dependence on Russia.

3. Gain a free hand in Europe, especially in Germany and Yugoslavia.

Traditional Russian policy — Czarist as well as Communist — was always to make difficulties for the western powers in the East in order to force them to be more conciliatory in Europe. Soviet-inspired armied aggression in the Far East is therefore regarded by some of the diplomatic and military experts gathered at Strasbourg as merely a diversion.

Europe, they believe, with its vast industrial base, "is the theatre of decision in the coming conflict between Russia and the western world."

It is recalled here that General Hoyt Vandenberg, U. S. Air Force Chief of Staff, recently said that "Europe alone holds the balance of power that could spare Communism from defeat in conflict."

It is in Europe, rather than in the East, the general said, "that Communist imperialism must ultimately resolve the question as to whether it shall seek accomodation with the free world."

* * *

By deliberately spreading war panic in Europe, Moscow, it is now clear, hopes to browbeat the British and the French to accept the Prague declaration of Russia's satellites as a basis for new four-power talks on Germany — despite strong U. S. opposition.

As yet there is no evidence that either Britain or France is ready to submit to Soviet pressure. But such a possibility, in the view of some delegates at Strasbourg, always exists.

Both countries are now on the eve of general elections in which peace in Europe will be the main, if not the only, electoral issue.

Meanwhile, fear of a new world war is mounting in Europe. Before coming here to attend the Assembly sessions, I toured the Western countries, including Yugoslavia. The new outbreak of war jitters is partly due to Communist China's intervention in the Korean conflict. But in a large measure it probably is a result of deliberate Cominform propaganda.

* * *

While in Yugoslavia I heard persistent rumors — obviously spread by Soviet sources — that Moscow has established an anti-Tito General Headquarters at Kalosca, close to the Hungarian-Yugoslav border.

In daily broadcasts beamed to Western Europe Radio Moscow insists that Communist China will stay in the Korean conflict until the bitter end.

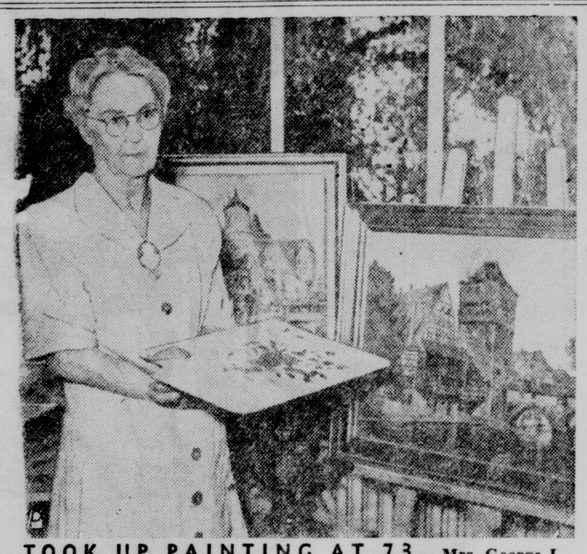

A declaration made on Oct. 6 by M. Waldeck-Rochet, one of the top—if not the top—Cominform representatives in France, is considered especially significant in western diplomatic circles.

Speaking to Communist Party officials at Limoges, Waldeck-Rochet stated:

"Why does not the Soviet Union intervene in Korea? It is certain if she did the war would soon be over and the Americans thrown into the sea. But it would start a world war which, for the time being, is contrary to the peace policy of the Soviet Union. We can be certain that a year of guaranteed peace is a year utilized to the utmost by the Soviet Union to reinforce its army and those of the popular democracies."

Waldeck-Rochet also assured his Communist listeners that "The Soviet Union will choose the right moment (for starting a war) and the imperialists will have no say in the matter."

Salt Flat Becomes Lake

SYDNEY—(AP)—Lake Eyre in Australia has never been anything but a vast salt pan—at least in the memory of present Australians. But now floods have filled it with water, 4,000 square miles in area.

A recent exploring party toured it in a launch. One member got seasick. The party was mystified by a tide on the lake of from 12 to 15 inches.

A Former Countess Likes Dairy Farm

ABBOTTSFORD, B. C.—(AP)—Once a member of the French underground and twice sentenced to death by the Germans, the former Comtesse de Dampierre—now Mrs. Lloyd Moore—is enjoying life on a dairy farm near here. She was first married to Count de Dampierre, who fought in the French army until France fell and returned home to join the underground with his wife. He failed to survive torture by the Gestapo, dying in a boxcar on his way to exile in Poland.

The former countess was also captured and was shunted from prison to prison. She managed to escape the firing squad twice and survived torture rather than give away her friends. She finally escaped from a bus carrying her to Poland and managed to stay out of the enemy's reach until her country was liberated. Two years later she met and married Moore, at the time serving with the American Army at the Nurenberg trials. They came here in 1948.

Farm Lottery Is 567 Years Old

ROME—(AP)—The little farms of old San Giovanni in Persiceto, in the province of Bologna, have just changed owners again for the sixty-third time in a land rotation scheme unbroken for more than 500 years. Every nine years since 1383 A. D. the plots subdivided from an old medieval estate of 4,942 acres have changed owners by a system of lottery.

Fish Gear Damage Studied

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—(AP)—Rutgers University will begin immediately a year-long study of effects of the coastal sea waters near New York Harbor on various types of cordage, including fishing nets, according to Dr. William H. Martin, director of the N. J. Agricultural Experiment Station.

Purpose of the study, Dr. Martin said is to help fishermen and boatmen who from time to time report damage to their lines, nets and ropes. An attempt will be made to determine how much deterioration actually occurs, its possible causes, and what can be done to protect the gear.

Attlee and Truman at Loggerheads Over China

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1950, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON.—Those who sat in on the prolonged talks with Prime Minister Attlee and President Truman agreed that they set a new highwater mark for Anglo-American cooperation—something that had been needed for a long time.

The two men talked as if they were fellow members of the same cabinet—though the Prime Minister, in his friendly way, did more talking than the President. Attlee even told Truman quite frankly that both he and French Premier Pleven were worried over his growing opposition in Congress and wondered whether any military agreements, made now, would be honored in the new 82nd Congress. President Truman later expressed some concern about this, and asked his staff to see what they could recommend to get the bipartisan foreign policy back on an even keel.

However, despite the healthy Anglo-American agreements to cooperate on economic matters and move for quick rearming of Europe, the two men remained far apart on policy toward Communist China. In fact, the only thing they agreed to China was to disagree.

Firm Last-Stand in Korea

A joint policy on the intermediate problem in Korea was a lot easier and here is how the Korean discussions progressed.

Prime Minister Attlee arrived with the feeling that the United Nations would be better off if we pulled out of Korea altogether. His views were confirmed when Gen. Omar Bradley, top chief of staff, gave an unvarnished account of the terrible casualties, and expressed doubt regarding the wisdom of trying to hold a beachhead.

The joint chiefs of staff, incidentally, have been unanimous behind Bradley; believe it might take as many as 50,000 casualties to maintain a beachhead.

This view was seconded by the British chief of staff, Field Marshal Sir William Slim, who also doubted the wisdom of remaining in Korea.

No-Appeaser Acheson

However, Secretary of State Acheson took the opposite view. Though branded an appeaser by Republicans, Acheson was anything but an appeaser in the talks with Attlee.

He argued that there were two ways of getting out of Korea—one to pull out, the other to get kicked out. To run out on a small country like Korea, he argued, would brand us as dishonorable, without courage, and a nation not to be trusted as an ally in the future.

If, on the other hand, we went down fighting to the last ditch and with colors flying, Acheson argued, our position would be far better in the eyes of the world.

Therefore, the secretary of state urged that we keep at least a beachhead in Korea, during which time we would do our best to improve our diplomatic bargaining position.

President Truman vigorously supported his secretary of state, and Prime Minister Attlee, after listening to the arguments, changed his mind and agreed that Acheson was right.

The joint chiefs of staff meanwhile estimate that with enough warships standing off shore and pounding the enemy around a beachhead, plus enough airplanes overhead, they can defend an Allied toe hold in Korea indefinitely.

The Blockade of China

Having agreed to this, the next big question was joint Anglo-American diplomatic policy toward China. This was the most difficult nut to crack of all.

In this case Acheson again proved to be anything but an appeaser. He favored a stiff straight-arm policy against the Chinese Communists, including a naval blockade and a boycott.

He proposed stationing the American and British fleets off the coast of China and preventing a single pound of merchandise or material from entering any Chinese port—until China was ready to revert to a peaceful status.

Acheson was also not averse to the idea of having Chiang Kai-shek's air force pound Chinese cities with bombing raids, and in brief putting our own U.N. iron curtain around China until she got over her belligerency.

Acheson also opposed and diplomatic negotiations with the Chinese delegates at the United Nations except regarding Korea. He said the State Department would flatly refuse to talk to the Chinese about either Formosa or admission to the U.N. or anything else until they corrected their belligerent position toward the U.N. in Korea.

The secretary of state stuck to this position throughout the various Attlee conferences, despite detailed and convincing arguments put up by the Prime Minister.

Attlee Argues

The Prime Minister argued:

1. That a naval blockade of China would not work, that China, a big and generally self-sufficient country, could import needed materials from Russia, Burma, Indo-China.

2. That the United Nations would not O.K. a blockade of China.

3. That such tough tactics would alienate other Asiatic countries.

4. That such a blockade would drive China into the arms of Russia.

Attlee argued that if we continued normal relations with China, there was a chance for Titoism—a chance that China would come back to her traditional policy of friendship with England and the U.S.A. But if we kept China at arm's length, he maintained there was no chance of undercutting Moscow's influence.

Faced with this impasse, Truman and Attlee decided to postpone any joint decision on Chinese policy, but play it by ear. They will wait and see what happens and cross each bridge as they come to it.

NOTE—The British got little information from their friends, the Indians, regarding the attitude of the Chinese delegate at Lake Success. After Sir Benegal Rau, head of the Indian delegation, lunched with the Chinese Communists, he reported fully to his government in New Delhi, but said almost nothing to the British. His inference was that the British would tell all to the Americans. However, he did give enough information to indicate that the Chinese Communists had been extremely tough and almost impossible to deal with.

Sen. Wherry Stumped

For one of the few times in his life ebullient Ken Wherry, the Senate Republican leader, was stumped for an answer the other day. He was being interviewed on European defense by an earnest young German reporter, Kurt Von Gleichen of Die Neue Zeitung, largest newspaper in the U.S. zone.

"You Germans will be the main line of defense against the Communists," said Wherry enthusiastically. "You are good fighters, and you like to fight.

"But we don't want to fight," answered the young, blond reporter. "We had enough of war."

Wherry thought it over for a moment and said, "Well, what would it take to have you fight the Russians?"

"If we had two or three divisions of American troops in Germany we knew would stay and fight," Von Gleichen replied, "that would be enough of an assurance."

The senator shook his head sadly. "But that would cost a lot of money," he said, "and we don't have that much money."

"But senator," the young German said patiently, "how can you say that? Every place I see television antennas on the roofs."

It was then that Wherry was stumped.

'Deal' Wth China Would Last Only While it Favored Reds

By Bruce Biossat

A successful, effective "deal" with Red China for creation of a buffer state in Korea would be the surprise of the year.

To begin with, United Nations armies on the peninsula are in retreat, with more Korean soil falling to the Chinese invader almost every hour. It must be clear to Mao Tse-tung that under present circumstances we will be hard-pressed to keep him from hurling our forces into the sea. This is hardly an ideal bargaining position.

But even if we held better cards, what is the evidence that Mao would be willing to make a settlement of any value to us?

According to estimates from the front, the Chinese Communists have now committed a million men to the Korean campaign, though only half are as yet actually fighting. The rest are poised on the Manchurian border.

You don't muster a million soldiers against 150,000 if you mean simply to protect a smaller buffer strip near your own territory. For weeks the Chinese leaders have been telling their own people they aim to throw us out of Korea. So far nothing has occurred to cast doubt upon that intention.

The Chinese offensive plainly was premeditated. A million men are not readied for fighting overnight. The basic decision to send them into Korea must have been made a considerable time ago.

European officials who argue that General MacArthur's last offensive provoked the Chinese assault are not facing facts. When that drive was launched, apparently around 250,000 Chinese were already in Korea. What where they doing there if not preparing for their own offensive? Surely they weren't vacationing.

The behavior of the Chinese Reds in UN councils leads you to the same conclusion. General Wu and his colleagues came to Lake Success in no mood of conciliation or good will. Ignoring the long record of western friendship with China, they came to accuse us viciously and irresponsibly of the very crimes they and their Russian masters are committing.

As Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb pointed out last summer, the Communists do not really view the UN as a peace agency. They regard it is a propaganda mechanism, a front on which they can wage war with words while they are fighting with weapons on the battlefield. Their aim is to confuse, to weaken, to divide and discredit the enemy so he may fight less effectively in the field.

That has always been Russia's game, and Red China's delegation appears wholeheartedly bent upon playing it, too.

Thus, you can search the recent record of Chinese deed and statement in vain for signs that Mao would welcome or even accept a settlement in Korea.

Yet, in spite of this weight of evidence he might astonish us and agree to some sort of terms. Supposing for an instant that those terms were not too unfavorable for us, what hope would we have that they would be long observed by China or Russia?

History has taught us that an agreement with Communists is good only so long as it serves Communist purpose. Often such accords are useful chiefly in lulling us to sleep. If we got a settlement, we'd be stuck with the stigma attaching to appeasement of communism, and would still face the risk of losing later what we'd held through the agreement.

A wiser course would seem to be to make the best fight we can to hold what we have in Korea, without getting so deeply involved that all-out war against China—with all its dangers for the decisive European theater—becomes inevitable.

No responsible citizen in the free world likes to contemplate the loss of virtually all Asia to Russian communism. It would be an economic, political and strategic defeat of colossal proportions.

Yet all western leaders concede it will be hard to avert this outcome now that Red China has committed major parts of its armed forces to the Korean battle. Nothing short of all-out war against China is likely to block seriously the flow of communism across Southeast Asia.

There are some highly esteemed men who believe we should make that effort—whatever the cost in blood and treasure. They believe the free nations might never be able to offset the handicap of losing Asia to Russia.

But it is thoroughly clear that President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Premier Pleven of France do not share that view. They believe that Europe is the primary theater of decision in the struggle against the Soviet Union. And they are convinced any full-scale commitment against Red China would pose the grave danger of leaving Europe almost defenseless.

It's important for us to understand why Europe is the key region, why our leaders would rather see all Asia go down before allowing European nations to slide into the Red abyss.

This is the reason: In a broad triangle of land embracing Belgium, French Alsace-Lorraine and the German Ruhr and Saar districts, there is a greater concentration of industry than anywhere in the world outside the United States.

Everything Russia could put together—even if it had all of Asia—would not match the industrial strength found in that triangle. And it takes the output of the entire United States to outdistance it.

From the selfish American viewpoint, nothing more need be said. Give that rich triangle to Russia and this country will no longer have the economic might to wage a winning war against communism. It's that simple.

We dare not allow this to happen if we wish to survive as a free nation. Obviously we have to defend European soil as if it were our own, even if the Europeans should not lift a finger to protect it themselves.

But we don't yet face so dire a prospect as that. Neither the British nor the French seem now to appreciate the urgency of the crisis. Certainly, too, they show little stomach for fighting another war. But we must still give them the full benefit of the doubt. We must assume that, having known freedom, they will still in the end be willing to fight for it again.

Western Europe is worth saving for its own sake as well as ours. Packed into that small continent live hundreds of millions of the most skilled, the most cultured, the most civilized people on earth. Most of them have lived long under liberty. In contrast, most Asiatics have no knowledge of freedom.

It would be a crushing blow not alone to freedom but to the whole fabric of western civilization, should Europe fall to Russian communism. There freedom was born, and there it may well die if we do not resolve to save it.

In the Hollow of His Hand

13 Lucky Guys

by FRANK R. ADAMS

COPR. 1950 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Sgt. Eddie Engstrom's squad is wiped out in action and the men realize they are dead when they find themselves unseen in Westwaygo, home town of most. Only Eddie's dog Duke can see them. But Eddie sees the sweetest girl he'd ever known—Margie Lou, who drives a bus. He goes to the bus terminal to find the lucky coin he had hidden when he drove the bus, and presently finds himself an unseen passenger of Margie Lou, who discovers the coin under the instrument panel.

* * *

MARGIE LOU took her eyes off the road and gazed in sheer amazement at what she had in her hand. "I wonder how I ever happened to do that!"

"Look out!" warned Eddie. "You'll wrap this piece of junk around a telegraph pole."

"Thanks, mister," said Margie Lou, resuming her driving. "I was surprised by this thing I found under the panel there."

"It's a lucky coin." All at once it occurred to him that they were talking, just as if he were really there. "Gee, did you hear what I said?"

"Sure. Why not?"

Eddie couldn't explain why not. He was dumfounded by the suddenly bestowed gift of communication between himself and the object of his affections. "I guess it's because you got that lucky coin of mine in your hand," he decided.

"What do you mean, soldier, your lucky coin? How'd it get here?"

"Why I put it there. But that was a long time ago when I used to drive this same bus before I went into the Army."

Margie Lou laughed, a very nice laugh, too. "That's a funny idea but I kind of believe you at that. Here, you can have it back."

Eddie almost reached for it but he remembered in time. "No, thanks. I couldn't take it." That was truer than she could know. "You keep it. Wear it on you somewhere all the time. It'll bring you luck."

"How about you, soldier?"

"Me? I don't need it. I got all the luck I can handle right now, just bein' able to talk to you."

"By rights you shouldn't."

"Can you see me."

She looked sidewise at him.

"Of course. You're about the biggest man I ever looked at. You shouldn't stand where you are. If you were a driver once you know the rules."

"It's all right in my case. I'm a former employe of the company," Eddie assured her.

"I don't think that's any reason, and neither do you."

Eddie chuckled. "All right, a better one is, then, because I've been away a long time and you have to be nice to us boys when we get home."

"Are you on leave?"

"Something like that."

* * *

THE buzzer rang for a stop. Margie Lou steered over to the curb and put on the brakes. She wasn't any too good at it and Eddie lurched against her shoulder.

"Sorry," he said.

"For what?"

"I bumped into you."

"No, you didn't."

That settled that. She couldn't feel it when he touched her.

While the passenger was getting off Margie Lou glanced at him. A puzzled expression clouded her face. "Do you know, soldier, you look like I've seen you before."

He couldn't very well tell her that they had been swimming together that very afternoon. "Probably we met somewhere before I went away or something."

Margie Lou shook her head. "I didn't meet many boys. I'd remember. What do all those ribbons on your coat mean?"

Eddie looked down at his chest. He had never worn any campaign ribbons, you don't on active service, but now there was a very respectable collection of bars. For a moment he admired them himself.

"Those tell where I've been," he explained. "I was in the South Seas quite a while."

Margie Lou started the bus.

"Were you hurt?" she asked.

"Uh-huh. That's why I'm home for a while."

"You look as if you were getting well all right. Anyway you weren't killed. That's something."

"Yeah, it's something else again. The ones who get killed are the lucky ones in some ways."

"That's a funny way to talk. Why would you say a thing like that?"

"Why — because — because it's true, I guess. You sort of know where you're at after you're dead. You don't wake up scared and wondering what next all the time. And you don't have to kill anybody any more, either."

* * *

MARGIE LOU laughed a little. "You talk as if you knew something about it. But you can't. Nobody does, unless they're dead themselves."

"That's right." Eddie laughed, too. "Nobody does, until then."

Margie Lou still had the lucky coin in her hand. "Sure you don't want this back, soldier?"

"No, I want you to wear it on you somewhere, mebbe on a string around your neck like us G.I.'s do with our dog-tags."

"I oughtn't to take it. I don't know you really at all."

"But you're goin' to," Eddie insisted eagerly. "Gee, I think you're—you're—well, you're nice. Maybe I could see you when you're off duty, Margie Lou."

"How did you know my name?" she asked, startled.

"Why—I guess maybe the starter called you that."

"No, he didn't."

"Somebody did." Eddie hurried over that one. "My name's Eddie—Eddie Engstrom."

"Oh. You're at the top of that list of service men in the bus station."

"Yeah. Now that we've been introduced, how about that date?"

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

Thomas J. Osborne of Chester, Pa., a few years ago manager of the Sedalia street railway and lighting plant, was in the city en route east after a trip to the Pacific coast.

George Ware, in charge of the R. G. Dunn agency's offices in Sedalia, returned from Hannibal where he had been on business.

The Rev. John Herron, a former pastor of the Central Presbyterian church here, died at Worcestershire, Ohio, according to information received by friends.

C. S. Ross was appointed as a special policeman to fill a vacancy on the force.

C. C. Gentry Saturday purchased from the John N. Dalby estate the seven room brick residence at 315 East Fifth street.

Mrs. Carrie Nation, the temperance lecturer, passed through the city en route to New York.

Supervision of the U.S. Mint originally was a function of the Secretary of State, but a separate agency was established for it in 1799.

Crossroads Comment

by G. H. S.

During the course of the sermon by the Rt. Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer, retired bishop of the Diocese of West Missouri, at Calvary Episcopal church last Sunday, he referred to a letter written by a war veteran which appeared in the New York Times March 5, 1950. It was captioned "John Crown's Legacy," and truly it is a legacy to the American people.

This letter appeared in the Sunday column of Howard A. Rusk, M.D., and he and the New York Times have granted the Democrat-Capital permission to reprint John's letter which is given below:

JOHN CROWN'S LEGACY

Veteran Leaves an Example of Courage
And a Plea That Love Supplant Greed

By Howard A. Rusk, M. D.

In 1946 a letter was published in this column from a young veteran in Halloran Hospital, a letter created by suffering, anguish and bewilderment. Last week, after four years of struggle, the writer, John Crown, died.

His legacy to the world was an example of courage and a philosophy of life which, in these troubled and uncertain days, plead even more eloquently for the necessity of understanding than the day on which his letter was written.

In this era of precious technology, hydrogen bombs, guided missiles and all the additions to the horrors of war that have caused an epidemic of anxiety and tension throughout the world, this pain-wracked boy's prescription for peace among men merits thoughtful re-reading.

My name is John Crown. I am a paraplegic at Halloran General Hospital. My physical wounds are very small in comparison with my spiritual wounds. I have come back from death to a world that I no longer care for. I, who have been engaged in the great struggle to save the world from tyranny and having seen my comrades die for this cause, can now find no peace in the world or in my country.

Having lived close to death for two years, the reasons why there is no peace seem infinitesimally flimsy. Russia wants the Dardanelles, Yugoslavia wants Trieste, the Moslems want India, labor wants more wages, capital wants more profit, Smith wants to pass the car in front of him, Junior wants more spending money. To these, I say, is it necessary to kill and cripple human beings for these petty gains?

Anyone who thinks a human body is so cheap that it can be traded for a tract of land, a piece of silver, or a few minutes of time should be forced to listen to the moans of the dying night and day for the rest of his life.

All the troubles of the world originate in the common man. The selfish and greedy ways of nations are just the ways of each individual man multiplied a hundredfold. When the morals of the common man drop, so do the morals of the nation and of the world.

As long as our individual morals remain at a low ebb, so will be the world. Until each of us stops "hogging the road" with his car, stops fighting over the seat on the bus, stops arguing over who is going to cut the grass, there will be no peace in the world. If man wishes peace again, he must return to the great Commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself for the love of God."

Phil. 2:3, 5; 4:7; I Cor. 2:16

THE MIND IS THE KEY

We said that the whole person is to be disciplined—intellect, feeling, will, body. Which is the key? Paul says, "Have your mind renewed, and so be transformed in nature, able to make out what the will of God is." (Romans 12:2, Moffatt.) The key apparently is the mind. For the verse says, "Have your mind renewed, and so be transformed in nature." Many would say that the nature transforms the mind; and there is a good deal of truth in that, for we often think with our emotions, the mind hunting for reasons to justify attitudes. Nevertheless, the mind is the master transformer. "As (a man) thinketh . . . so is he."

The American Medical Association reports that football players raised their endurance 200 per cent in three weeks by taking sugary tablets which they believed contained gelatin, but which didn't, and which had nothing the doctors thought could raise endurance Other football players were given sugary tablets which did contain the gelatin chemical, aminoacetic acid, which is reported to increase endurance. They too improved 200 per cent, but they did not outdo the sugar-tablet boys. "As (a man) thinketh . . . so is he."

If you think you are beaten, you are. The mind renews the nature, and also resigns the nature to defeat. But, with the Christian, all this is not a lifting of oneself by the bootstraps. For the next portion of the verse says, "able to make out what the will of God is." Here the mind is linked with the will of God—it is not a mind seeking to play mental tricks on itself, for that soon breaks down. You can "kid" yourself so far and no farther. Only when you are linked to reality can you go all the way. The Christian mind links itself with the will of God and hence taps resources—real resources for real living. The mind thus stands between the will of God and nature and is the key to the linking of nature and the will of God. The mind throws the switch one way or the other—links you to infinite resources, or entangles you in your own futile self. "As (a man) thinketh . . . so is he"

O God, take all defeatism, all fear, all turning in on myself, from my mind. And give me a mind that takes life by the hand and leads it to affirmation, to achievement, to victory, to the infinite resources of God. Give me a mind that minds its chief business—to find out the will of God, for the will of God is the homeland of the mind. Bring me home. Amen.

• Q's and A's

Q—Why was the name Continental applied to the first and second Congress?

A—At its first meeting in Philadelphia in 1774, the delegates of the American Colonies assembled as an advisory council. The name "Continental" was adopted to distinguish this Congress from those in the various provinces and it developed into a central Government. The Continental Congress continued to operate until it was replaced by the United States Congress in 1789.

Joel McCrea, in a role reminiscent of his "Stars In My Crown" performance, is the loveable, laughable vagabond of "Saddle Tramp," technicolor different western family film opening today at the Fox Theatre. Wanda Hendrix is co-starred with John Russell and John McIntire in support.

John Payne wins the affections of Rhonda Fleming in the technicolor production, "The Eagle And The Hawk," Dennis O'Keefe co-stars with the pair. Co-hit on this program is "Snow Dog," a down to earth story of the north woods. This program plays Today and Monday only at the UPTOWN Theatre.

Mala Powers, whose moving performance in the leading feminine role of Ida Lupino's production, "Outrage," has attracted widespread attention. She is seen as the victim of unprovoked attack and the film deals with the effect of this experience on the girl and her relation to society. "Outrage" starts today at the Liberty theatre. Companion feature on the bill is "The Showdown," new action picture with William Elliott, Walter Brennan and Marie Windsor.

Flying Tigers

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The office of Robert Prescott, president of the Flying Tiger Freight Line, says Gen. Claire Chennault, who commanded the famed Flying Tigers in China during World War II, has nothing to do with that company.

A recent Associated Press dispatch telling how the Flying Tiger airline was ferrying refugees through Singapore from Germany to Australia named Chennault as operator of the line.

Letter Predicts End of World

PENANG—(AP)—Is the end of the world near? That seems to be a main topic of conversation among villagers in outlying districts of Penang and Province Welleseley these days. Those doing the talking say that the sun will soon disappear for three days and nights and after that it will be seen rising in the west.

This, say rumor-mongers, is a sign that the world's end is near.

All of this kind of talk orginated from a letter reportedly discovered in far-off Mecca, and sent here. So superstitious-minded village folks are spreading the "news."

Twenty Stories Of Concrete

NEW YORK—(AP)— Reinforced concrete is taking the place of the usual steel skyscraper skeleton in the construction of a 20-story luxury apartment project on New York's East River front near the United Nations headquarters.

The $7,000,000 structure for 390 families will be New York's first building of this height to be constructed entirely of concrete, according to Paul Tishman, the builder. A two-level underground garage will take 200 automobiles off the street.

All living rooms and master bedrooms with large windows facing the river, will be five-sided rooms.

Average house lighting function satisfactorily on 15-ampere fuses, while circuits working appliances may require 20-amperes.

When the United States entered World War I, the Aviation Service—later the AAF—had 55 planes and 65 officers.

R. A. F. Recruits In Singapore

Rockets Miss, But Get Tank

WITH THE FIRST MARINE AIRCRAFT WING IN NORTH KOREA—(AP)— While Capt. Grover C. McClure, Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., was flying north of Pyonyang, he spotted an enemy tank on a narrow road. He put his plane into a dive and let fly a hail of rockets, but the tank maneuvered smartly and the rockets landed around it. No hits.

McClure launched two more rockets directly in front of the tank. Still no hits. But the rockets confused the tank driver. He swerved off the road into a rocky ravine. The tank turned over and over, bouncing right out of the war.

Marines Use Their Heads

WONSAN, North Korea—(AP)—During World War II, war-weary Marines on Pacific islands were referred to by their shipmates as being 'rock-happy." There's a new term now"Korea conscious."-

It's applied to Marines who are beginning to carry baskets, stray timbers, or what have you on their heads, like Korean women.

But a Marine who can carry a pail of water balanced on his dungaree cap still rates stares of pure admiration.

Two U.S. Navy frigates, among 27 loaned to Russia during World War II, now are being used by the Republic of Korea Navy.

HOUNDED TO DEATH—Only a matter of seconds after this remarkable photograph was snapped at Clounanna, Ireland, the hare—already close to the jaws of greyhound Papanour—was dead. The action occurred during the greyhound coursing event for the Irish Cup Trophy

Estate of Recluse About $410,522

GREENFIELD, Mo., Dec. 9—(AP)—An inventory of the estate of Horace Kirby, Dadeville recluse, showed the 83-year-old man left approximately $410,522.

Missouri property was valued at $218,522, including $85,505 in land, $74,735 in government bonds and $55,505 in bank deposits. Texas land holdings were valued at $192,000.

Kirby, who lived in a store at Dadeville drowned in the Sac river near Dadeville October 26. Officers said he apparently had taken his own life by tying a rock around his neck and jumping into the stream.

Heirs named in his will were four brothers and a sister. The last heir to get in touch with the probate court was Claude Kirby of Denver, Colo.

Reserves Right As to A-Bomb

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 —(AP)—President Truman made it clear in his joint communique with Prime Minister Attlee Friday that he alone reserves the right to decide when and if the A-bomb should be used.

On this subject, the communique said:

"The President stated that it was his hope that world conditions would never call for the use of the atomic bomb. The President told the Prime Minister that it was also his desire to keep the Prime Minister at all times informed of developments which might bring about a change in the situation."

Tyrol Has Cold War

VIENNA — (AP) — A "cold war" has broken out in the heart of the snowy Austrian sky country. Two provinces of western Austria —the Tyrol and Vorarlberg — have most of the mountains and most of the snow.

Last week, the Tyroleans accused the Vorarlberg provincial authorities of carrying out a "snow blockade." They said the Vorarlbergers were refusing to clear snow off a pass that separated the two provinces.

This, the Tyroleans said, was preventing winter tourists from reaching them. The Vorarlbergers replied: "You can clear it off yourselves if you want to."

England to Print Encyclopedia

LONDON — (AP) — The Encyclopedia Britannica, which originated in Britain, is going to be printed here again for the first time since 1911. It has been published in Chicago.

The 25 volumes are expected to be printed here by next summer. John Armitage, London editor of the encyclopedia, said the printing of 10,000 sets of the new edition "is the biggest printing job ever attempted in this country."

Each set contains 38,000,000 words and the publication of 10,000 sets will require 420 tons of paper — nearly 100 pounds to each set.

Wholesale Public Housing

NEW YORK — (AP) —The number of persons now living in public housing in New York City exceeds the population of good sized cities. Gerald J. Carey, executive director of the New York City Housing Authority, reporting on construction progress, has announced that since World War II, a total of 36,000 new apartments have been completed with 90 per cent of the tenants being veterans.

Including projects built before the war, this makes the authority landlord for 53,000 families, or more than 200,000 persons. Eleven more projects for which contracts have been awarded and 14 others with preliminary approval bring the city's program to 87 big developments providing apartments for 101,000 families. More than 380,000 applications are on file.

TOLEDO — (AP) — Squinting automobile drivers in sun and snow countries may soon get relief from an improvement in the windshields.

One new windshield, of bluish-green tint, has a shading of graduated intensity above the eye level to cut glare from the bright sky. Iron oxides in the glass itself eliminate more than 15 per cent of the infra red rays and yet admit more than 70 per cent of average daylight, said Dr. George B. Place Ban on Goods to Go To Red China

Includes Strategic Materials For Soviet Europe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 —(AP)— The Commerce Department Friday banned American ships and planes from carrying strategic materials "anywhere in the world" destined for Communist China or Soviet Europe.

The ban is effective immediately. It applies to movement of weapons, fissionable materials or strategic industrial goods consigned between any two points outside the United States, even intermediary points if the goods are to go to those areas.

The ban likewise was made applicable to shipments destined for Hong Kong or Macao, the British and Portugese ports off China, to insure that goods will not be forwarded from those ports into Communist China itself.

So far as China is concerned, the ban would apply to any goods whatsoever — strategic or not — since any shipment to China now must be licensed, and licenses are not being granted. It would not, however, shut off hauling of non-strategic goods destined for the Soviet bloc in Europe.

News of the ban first was announced by Senator Maybank (D.-S.C.).

The order was issued by Maj Gen. Philip B. Fleming, undersecretary of commerce for transportation. He cited the Defense Production Act of 1950 as his authority.

Fleming's order declared the action "necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense."

It cited section 101 of the Defense Production Act, which gives the government authority to allocate materials and facilities. The theory, officials said, is that the order involves the allocation of shipping space.

The impact will be felt by American carriers — planes and ships—operating between foreign points. Virtually identical bans already exist on movements direct from the U.S. to China, Hong Kong, Macao and Soviet Europe.

Severe Penalties

Violations of the order would be subject to penalties as high as $10,000 fine and a year, in prison. In addition, violating carriers could be denied operating privileges, which would mean going out of business.

To protect affected carriers against suits for breach of contract, Foeming's order declared:

"No person shall be held liable for damages or penalties for any default under any contract or order which shall result directly or indirectly from compliance. . . Notwithstanding that this (order or section of the Defense Production Act) shall thereafter be declared by judicial or other competent authority to be invalid."

The order applies to ship and plane owners, masters, other officers, employees or agents.

Maybank told reporters that Secretary of Commerce Sawyer had advised him of the forthcoming order, which would be in line with legislation the Senator introduced two days ago.

The executive order, Maybank said, will prevent any American vessel or plane from hauling cargoes from any place in the world to a country within the Soviet orbit.

He noted that this would ban them from carrying goods from Hong Kong, British crown colony off the coast of Communist China. Senators have complained that this is a major point of trade with the Chinese Reds.

THEY SAW WAR—Shivering in their tattered clothes, two North Korean youngsters at Hagaru, near the Chosin reservoir, learned at an early age that war is hell. The town has been the scene of bitter fighting between U. S. Marine and Army troops and the Communists. (NEA-Acme photo by Staff Photographer Ed Hoffman.)

TOUGH TRAINING FOR BERLINERS—A "bull fight" provides strenuous exercise to keep these members of the new West Berlin industrial police in good physical condition. They may replace American troops on guard duty in West Berlin. They would be ready, too, to help defend the city in event of Communist aggression. (NEA-Acme photo by Staff Photographer Allyn Baum.)

Flying Boats Help in Korea

SINGAPORE—(AP)—British flying boats are estimated to have flown more than 1,000 hours by day and night in helping out in the Korean war. They have been, and still are, on patrol, reconnaisance and communications operations. They are credited with having helped U. N. naval forces to blockade the Korean coast, flown search mission to locate minefields and made rescue patrols to aid survivors from lost ships.

The veteran N. 88 flying squadron is now leaving the Iwakuni base in southern Japan and returning to Singapore via Hongkong. To replace it, Squadron No. 205 of British flying boats has gone to Japan to take up anti-submarine and mine-spotting patrols.

Beavers Delay Pipeline

CORRY, Pa.—(AP)—Beavers are responsible for holding up construction of a natural gas pipeline through this section. The animals blocked up a 100-yard lakefront area in the pipeline route. Engineers were required to use several dozen sticks of dynamite in blasting the beavers' dam work.

They made no effort to trap the furry creatures but farmers probably will take on the job. The beavers branched out and completed the even more unappreciated project of flooding pasture acreages and farms in the same vicinity.

Wounds Bring Brothers Together

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN NORTH KOREA—(AP)—Two marine brothers met for the first time in two years, at the Naval Hospital in Yokosuka, Japan, recently. Privates First Class George and Michael Kaczmarek of Buffalo, N. Y., both members of the famed First Marine Division, were wounded in the fight for the liberation of Seoul.

The Kaczmareks were wounded on the same hour, of the same day, while fighting with the same division in the same battle.

Grass Control

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—A large gully on the Guy Hensley farm near Paton, once deep enough to hide a tractor, has now been brought so well under control it could be farmed.

Ward Schilling, operating the 280-acre farm, used reed canary grass to control the erosion. The gras had been doubling itself every year. Schilling says he doesn't plan to farm it, however, nor the surrounding upland. The upland has been eroding too severely to be cropped, he said. He will use the section for pasture. The grass, which grows in clumps from two to eight feet in height, makes fine pasture and hay.

There are many manufacturers of fabrics and manufacturers of garments who, from motives of business integrity and pride in their products, make all manner of tests before marketing their products. In justice to them, we must state that the great percentage of fabrics and garments can be dry cleaned with entire satisfaction. It is the exceptions to good manufacturing practice that must be guarded against.
